

WE NOMINATE

Joseph Esrey Johnson, a commuters' commuter who thinks as little of his daily jaunt from Winant Road to Manhattan's East 46th Street as he does of traveling the world for the United Nations or for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The 55-year old Johnson, president of the Carnegie Endowment since 1950, is very much in the world news this week with the publication of his report to the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine — the disturbing, mildly optimistic and intensely human document he prepared on the plight of the "Palestine Refugees" as the UN Commission's special envoy in the Near East.

Some 13 years after the Israeli-Arab power struggle gave birth to the "refugee problem," an incendiary issue in the Middle East comparable in its intensity to integration-segregation in this country, this soft-spoken foundation executive, with years of service in higher education and the public service behind him, has placed spark-instant matters in the proper perspective. It is his conviction, for instance: "Despite all too frequent signs of intransigence and even of a bellicose attitude, I believe that responsible statesmen on both sides want peace in a general way and as a long-term goal."

While Johnson's report is essentially a reasoned plea for converting some 2,500,000 human beings "from unfortunate objects of international charity into useful and active members of the human family," it is punctuated with sentences and phrases that conjure up the conditions prevailing in a divided world. He traveled the Middle East for a period of weeks, held innumerable meetings, and wherever he turned found not only a large degree of "mistrust and suspicion but of active fear on both sides." The "lack of mutual fear," he observes, "underlies, and to a certain extent, probably explains governmental policies on both sides."

A native of Longdale, Va., with hardly a trace of a southern accent, Johnson took his undergraduate degree at Harvard in 1927 and subsequently received his Harvard master's degree and doctorate in 1932 and 1933, respectively. He did his first college teaching in Bowdoin College (Brunswick, Maine) and moved on to Williams College (Williamstown, Mass.) with which he was affiliated, either as a popular member of the Department of History or on leave for government service, from 1936 until 1950. It was as a Williams professor during the period 1912-1917 that the energetic Johnson, once an enthusiastic mountain climber and now an occasional tennis player, demonstrated the qualities that led to his elevation to the presidency of the Carnegie Endowment.

Johnson, known as a "round-the-clock worker," was first tapped by the Department of State in 1942 and two years later was directing its Division of International Security Affairs. A member of the Department's policy planning staff at the time he returned to the Williams campus in 1947, he had been a major participant in the conferences which led directly to the establishment of the United Nations. He had been an adviser to the United States Delegation in the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in 1944, an expert member of this country's representation in the organizational San Francisco Conference of 1945, and in 1946 an adviser to the American statesmen who spoke for the United States in the initial gatherings of the UN's General Assembly.

For "his inquiring, scholarly approach to international problems"; for his dedication to the ideal that human beings everywhere must have "opportunities to live worthwhile lives"; for his great capacities for service in a world starving for both public and private leadership; he is 'TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

ANNOUNCE SCHOOL PLANS

Borough Seeks Land. A tract of 18.6 acres of undeveloped land lies across from Princeton High School between Walnut Lane and Linden Lane.

The Borough Board of Education is considering plans for developing this land into a Borough Educational Center. Members of the Board at Tuesday night's meeting authorized Chairman Rohrer, Board president, to open formal negotiations with Westminster Choir College for purchase of the tract.

The proposed center would replace both Nassau Street and Witherspoon Schools. These two school properties would be sold, and profits from the sale reinvested in the new school facilities.

Sale of the two school properties would also strengthen the Borough's tax base, the Board pointed out, adding a possible $1 million in rateables.

School Plans. The School

SHE'S NUMBER 500: "Yes," the Youth Employment Service, passed the 500 mark this week. Since its inception late last spring, YES has brought together 499 employers and 499 boy-or-girl employees. The 500th joined together Trinity Church and Kerry Lumsden, 16, of Princeton High School. Kerry, will spend three hours each Sunday morning caring for nursery-age children while their parents are in church. Mrs. W. H. Fonger uses young Bobby Fonger to give Kerry a few lessons in child care. Kerry, an Australian came to the United States this fall. (Staff Photo)

Board envisions a unique complex on the 18-acre plot. There would probably be a single structure, housing in its center, such basic facilities as cafeteria, library, gymnasium, health rooms and administrative offices.

On one side of the center would be the new elementary school and on the other, the new junior high school, both schools so widely separated that playgrounds and entrances for such disparate age groups as kindergarten and eighth grade would not conflict with each other.

In addition, the combined arrangement would allow joint use of science, art and music classrooms and equipment. As it is now, Borough teachers must travel from Nassau Street to Quarry Street and to the high school on Moore Street, wasting time in travel and causing endless scheduling complications, according to Dr. Chester R. Stroup, superintendent of schools.

Once the complex is built, these teachers will only have to cross Walnut Lane to the High School; otherwise, they will remain within the school buildings.

Unique. "This is a unique opportunity to develop a centralized Borough school plant," Board members stated, "resulting in greater educational efficiency and administrative economies."

Both Borough buildings are adequate for the present, the Board stated, but "intelligent forethought requires that steps be taken now to maintain the top ranking of our public school system for the future."

For example, the Board faces, within the next three to five years, the need for replacing entire heating plants in the existing schools.

"These schools are not new," commented Mr. Rohrer. "Why throw spears into a dead dragon?"

Junior High? The Board and Dr. Stroup are also considering the possibility that the new schools would house a true junior-high, that is a ninth grade, converting the high school into a three-year school.

"Since 88 percent of the Borough school population, kindergarten through eighth grade, lives within one mile of the proposed center, it is not affected by any of the current discussions of the possibilities of consolidation of Borough and Township of their school systems," the Board said.

Members pointed out that, if the two school systems were consolidated, the Educational Center would be ideally located to serve as a core school for most of the school children, with the Township's outlying schools taking care of the periphery.

The tract of land lies in Princeton Township, in an area zoned for educational purposes. Because of this zoning status, Borough's purchase would not remove any rateables from the Township's tax rolls.

How Much? The assessed valuation of the land, according to the Township tax office, is $82,100. Mr. Rohrer would not indicate how much the Borough was prepared to pay, or how much Westminster Choir College might ask for the land.

Under state statutes, the Board of Education has powers of condemnation for any parcel of land under 25 acres, but the Board hopes to reach an amicable financial agreement with the Choir College before such a step is necessary.

The plot extends along Franklin for 932 feet, and north along Walnut Lane for 1260 feet with a stub extending across the unimproved portion of Guyot Avenue. A row of Linden Lane houses backs up to the eastern boundary of the tract.

The possibility of acquiring the land has been informally considered ever since 1943.

Nassau Street School lies on a two and one-half acre plot which Dr. Stroup describes with awe as being "platinum, pure platinum."

An expert in real estate has estimated that the property is worth $2,000 a front foot, partly because it is situated in such a prime Nassau Street location, and partly because it goes all the way through to William Street.

"Bad Image" GOOD IMAGE

by A. N. SPANEL, Chairman
International Latex Corporation

The recent Vienna meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the discussions that took place there were tremendously important for all of us.

France took what some observers called a "difficult" position. The French happen to be hardheaded in fiscal matters. They know from two centuries of bitter experience that a frivolous approach in monetary matters can destroy a nation, first undermining the dignity and morale of its people in the process.

Accordingly they have been anxious to see the International Monetary Fund become a sound and rational institution, subject to traditional financial disciplines. Otherwise, they warned in Vienna, it might become so loose and careless that not only the Fund itself but every nation connected with it would be seriously harmed.

The Vienna discussions revolved chiefly around a plan under which the main European countries would provide stand-by credits to the IMF. Though French representatives went along with the plan in principle, they voiced some common-sense reservations. In particular, they wished to make sure, as one Paris dispatch summed it up, "that any future borrowers—including the United States—be required to adopt the necessary corrective budget and monetary measures." They stressed the need for other "safeguards."

CHORUS OF CYNICS

This was an earnest approach to a vital issue, reflecting a deep concern for the long-range effects on all Western currencies. Logically it should have drawn applause. Instead, many American and British newspapers — and, ironically, even part of the French press — proceeded to impugn the country's motives. The French position, some cynics suggested, was a species of "revenge" for alleged "humiliations" in the past, when France was at the borrowing end of the operation.

By now it is generally conceded that these insinuations are false and malicious. It is clear that France conducted herself in the Vienna bargaining as a wise and experienced friend and ally. But Paris is distressed by the "bad image" the unwarranted criticism may produce in world opinion. Officials are seeking to correct this distorted "image."

Why all the fuss? Why so much heat where light should prevail? Why the false labelling on one side and the feeling of guilt about a "bad image" on the other?

Have the money managers of the West become so contemptuous of sound currency, or so defeatist, that they now accept the risks of bankrupting inflation as inevitable?

Unhappily there are in the Free World today some government money managers, reckless and undisciplined, who have come to look upon backbreaking national debts as jugglers' tricks in a monetary circus. Only those who regard prudence in the use of money as old-fashioned and reactionary could attribute the realistic French stand to arrogance and "revenge." Their slurs on the motivations and integrity of France have done an enormous injustice to the hard working French people.

It will be recalled that former Finance Minister Antoine Pinay and Professor Jacques Rueff, played key roles in reforming the monetary system of their country — to the point where the French franc is today among the strongest of currencies.

RIGHTS TO SAFEGUARDS

What was behind the French position in Vienna? The French, heirs to an old civilization wise in the lessons of history, never belittle experience. In 1958 when France sought to borrow money from the Monetary Fund, she herself was obliged to present the Fund with guarantees that France would initiate internal monetary reforms that would save the then deteriorating franc. At the Vienna meeting France was able to show how those internal reforms generated a strong franc that is today respected everywhere—and therefore asked that borrowers from the International Monetary Fund, small and large, also be required to put their respective monetary houses in order, so that their own currencies might grow in sufficient strength to command international confidence and respect.

Since when is it wrong for a partner in a common enterprise to insist on safeguards in the interest of sound money, which is so obviously in the interest of all the people of all the nations party to the IMF?

Actually the whole Free World — and America especially — should take to heart the French insistence upon prudent use and management of money. It is axiomatic that wherever currencies begin to decay — because of reckless piling up of national debt or continued disdain for balanced budgets — the country in the end loses the respect of its allies and enemies alike.

AMERICANS SEEK ANSWERS

The French people may be heartened to learn that thinking Americans everywhere are now asking their Senators and Congressmen these questions:  Is our taxation system as progressive and as just as it is necessary; or is it an obsolete one that discourages free enterprise and full employment and therefore needs overhauling? * Has the foreign aid we have given with taxpayers' dollars been wisely conceived and used for the benefit of the majority in the countries receiving this aid? * Is the United States really getting the maximum in defense for the taxpayers' dollars its Government spends? * Are we working hard enough to gain the enormous foreign trade we need to prevent the disastrous loss of our gold reserves; and are the prices of American products on world markets sufficiently competitive to encourage and invite this huge world-trade? * What is the present administration of the Democratic Party doing to impress these facts of competitive life on labor and agriculture any more than the past administration of the Republican Party did?*

It is significant that the American people having given enormously of themselves to their Allies, have also accepted the concept that dedicated Unity between the principal nations of the West is what the Kremlin fears most and is thus the Free-World's decisive deterrent against communist aggression. They are therefore insisting today that nothing be spared by any ally to help achieve this Unity, economically, with all its political implications, no less than militarily.

This insistence on Unity has taken on high pitch since Khrushchev's initiation of the Berlin crisis and poisonous nuclear testing, with an increasing number of Americans now saying that any ally that drags its feet on such Unity is also dragging itself into the enemy camp; and that those allies of the West that are helping to weld a true Unity are on the side of free men and freedom.

On the subject of currency, it is a certainty that if the dollar continues to be corroded and eroded, even clear military superiority may not suffice to save the free world. In the building of national strength, a strong dollar is as essential a keystone as a strong military establishment.

In our country, if anywhere, the French position should be understood and appreciated. The French people in all walks of life are today heavily taxed. Their contributions to underdeveloped areas, in relation to their gross national product, rank among the highest. French concern for the sound operation of the IMF, in concert with Per Jacobson who is its head, is therefore as wise as it is sound.

SACRIFICES AND FEARS

Not only French financiers and officials but the French people are profoundly aware of the danger of inflationary forces, especially of a runaway wage-price spiral. Finance Minister Wilfrid Baumgartner has been subjected to great pressure and abuse for his unwavering stand against inflation; though French trade unions have been remarkably restrained in their demands. Even the farmers, despite recent outbreaks in the most depressed agrarian sectors, are really modest in their demands. In short, the French people have sacrificed much in the achievement of a sound currency and they do not propose to see this achievement go down the drain.

For the French know that an abused, decaying currency in any Western nation in the IMF, would of necessity tend to pull down with it the currencies of other member nations as yet prudently strong. The International Monetary Fund presumably was brought into being to function vigorously and rationally, in breadth and in depth, with every nation putting part of its currency "in the pot." They therefore have a common stake in the internal reforms covering taxation, disciplined monetary management, and safe export-import balances, of every member nation.

The French people need not worry about the "bad image." In the final analysis, ancient and modern history is the West's best guarantee that sound currencies are as indispensable as great military power. In insisting upon this, the French are making a significant contribution to aver-all Free World strength.

"WE NEED $14,000"
Or Else Say "No." The Princeton High School Choir needs $14,000. Without the money, the Choir will not be able to accept a most unusual invitation to perform at the World's Fair in Seattle next summer.

Through its director, Thomas Hilbish, the Choir has received an invitation from the University of Washington to participate in an international festival honoring the composer, Anton Webern. The Choir has been asked to sing Webern's Cantata I and II, repeating the performance given last summer in Princeton before the International Musicological Society.

"I've polled all the boys and girls in the choir, and they are all able and eager to go," Mr. Hilbish says, "but it will cost between $11,000 and $14,000 to get all 50 of them, and me, out to Seattle. The Board of Education just doesn't have that kind of money."

The Choir is the only amateur group that has been asked to participate. Professional groups that will journey to Seattle include the Juillard String Quartet and the Philadelphia orchestra. If the Princeton High School Choir makes the trip, it will be accompanied by members of the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Spokane Philharmonic.

Only One from High School. Mr. Hilbish also learned this week that the choir is the only high school choir in the country to be listed on the State Department's international cultural exchange program.

This honor came, like the Seattle invitation, as a direct result of the Webern performance the Choir gave here last summer. On the advice of the 18 musicians who make up the list, the State Department dropped all high school choirs because of the youthfulness of their members. But when the 18 musicians heard the tape of the Webern, they told the State Department to make an exception in the case of Princeton High School, because they felt that the Choir would be a credit to the United States government.

The music of Anton Webern is esoteric beyond the musical experience of the average choral group, based on a 12-tone scale and requiring truly vir-

THEY'VE BEEN HONORED: Thomas Hilbish, at the piano, directs two of his Princeton High School Choir singers, Travis Bryant and Susan Kilbon. tuoso singing for accurate performance.

In a New York Times review following the summer presentation, Eric Salzman wrote of the Choir's "extraordinary performance" commenting on the naturalness and ease with which the group sang.

"Hearing the notes, singing them, putting them together into lines and harmony, making them expressive and meaningful, is a challenge that few professionals today seem to be willing or able to meet," Mr. Salzman wrote.

Mr. Hilbish, a 1948 graduate of Westminster Choir College, has directed the Choir for 14 years. His singers start out in their freshman year in a vocal technique class which is open to everyone.

Some of these singers make the Choir in sophomore year, others need more training and are held back until junior year, and some even have to wait until their final year before acceptance.

The boys and girls are taught to read at sight, to hear and to sing intervals accurately (a "must" for works like the Webern cantatas).

"We also work at improving their music literacy," Mr. Hilbish says, "bringing it to a level where the performance of difficult and demanding music is a natural thing."

In Mr. Hilbish's vocal classes, music is taught as a subject, like math or English.

"We don't consider music as entertainment," the director comments, "but as a serious preparation for further work in college and in later life."

A student of ancient history was telling us that men of olden times believed that the gods of "good" lived within the right side of the body, and the devil or forces of evil lived within the left side of the body. He said that a popular present day saying and superstition stems from that old, old belief. For example, many hotel rooms are arranged with the left side of the bed against the wall, so that you will not inadvertently "Get up on the wrong side of the bed." Going back into antiquity the student finds that man believed that if he rose from the left side of his bed the forces of evil would surely govern him all that day, and he would have nothing but bad luck.

So even the stone age men had their good and bad days, and had to have something to blame them on. Apparently the ancients had their 'split personalities' and tried to rationalize them, but today we know that no evil spirits will get in our way provided we work hard enough to make the good ones take over for us. And, that reminds us that long ago we learned that we must add to the Good for you every time . . . and now, it's our mission in life. For the best of luck . . . and savings with satisfaction, see us soon! Kammer Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport, WA 1-2222.

Christmas Fund to Open Next Week

TOWN TOPICS' 15th annual Christmas Fund will open with the appeal to be published in its next issue, Thursday, December 7. The first such request for assistance to a family in need was made in 1947, since that time, hundreds of Princetonians less fortunate than others have been helped in a manner that has been of lasting value.

Gifts from throughout the Princeton area — and often from Princetonians many miles away who keep in touch with the Fund — have provided a link for the undernourished, warm clothing for families literally too large to make ends meet; fuel for poverty-ridden homes; and — best of all — the renewed hope that comes to young and old "because some one cares."

Scores of Princeton children have enjoyed two weeks of summer camp and its health-giving benefits because of their neighbors' generosity. Families have been held together because the Fund provided assistance when the lack of help would have meant the need to live under separate roofs for reasons of economy.

In the past 14 years, contributions to the Fund have totalled more than $35,900. Although undertaken at Christmas-time, it is, of course, one that provides year-round benefits for the many whom it aids.

Next week will bring a new opportunity to help one's own.

This Is Princeton

Built-in Parking. There are 326 9 feet of Nassau Street frontage, which could bring the price of the property to $652,000. The Board would like to sell it for an office building, pointing out that built-in parking space in the form of the playground, is already available. However, any purchaser would have to tear the building down. In its present state, it is probably good only for a school, the Board feels.

The possibility of Universality interest in the land has also been raised, but the Board believes that the Borough would fight any increase in tax-exempt properties.

"A rateable like the one that could come from that property would be too good to let slip," Mr. Bohrer said.

Witherspoon School is not quite so "platinum," the Board realizes. It lies on a one-and-one-half acre plot in an area zoned for apartments, where apartments are needed, and could easily be rented by a developer, the Board said.

The Board believes that, should an agreement be reached with Westminster Choir College, there would probably not be any need for a bond issue because of revenue from the sale of the two school properties. If a bond issue were required, it would be "minimal," in the opinion of the Board.

Nassau Street School, first known as Princeton Model School, was built in the 1880's as a high school, and served as such until the present high school was built in 1929.

The present stone structure was built in 1911-12 and in 1934 was razed and the auditorium and the rooms above it were added. Four rooms in the rear are all that remain of the original 80-year-old building.

Witherspoon School, built in 1908, was completely remodelled in 1938.

PERSONALITIES

Irwin W. Weiss, 248 Moore Street, who on Saturday will achieve an unusual distinction in the world of football when he draws a repeat assignment as an official in the Army-Navy game—an honor rarely accorded because the two sports-minded military academies do not often agree on the manner in which one difficult play after another has been called. For those who watch the televised proceedings from Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium, Umpire Weiss can be spotted behind the defensive team.

Carol Hersh, 179 Riverside Drive, 16-year old Princeton High School senior whose musical talents make life pleasant for those living at "Merwick" through the seminars she holds there once a week. For pictures and story on her activities in this line, see page 17.

ROUND-UP

Temperature readings below freezing have been common during the past week, with a low in the mid-20's recorded Tuesday morning . . . a 20-mile-an-hour wind made it seem worse, but the low for the date wasn't reached . . . on November 28, 1930, the thermometer got down to 14.

For no apparent reason, sneak thieves were far busier around parked cars and in Prospect Street clubs during the Dartmouth weekend than they were for Yale, which drew 42,000 people to Palmer Stadium compared to 30,000 for Dartmouth . . . clothing, pocketbooks, purses, whiskey and a portable (naturally) bar were among the articles taken.

Biggest loss, however, had nothing to do either with football or thievery . . . Edwin E. Smith, 156 Moore Street, told Borough police that his wife's one-and-a-half karat square-cut diamond ring was lost Friday in the vicinity of Witherspoon and Nassau . . . the owner placed a value on the ring of $2000.

A $180 waxing machine rented by the Hun School from Morris Maple and Son was taken from a pick-up truck while being returned to Maple's . . . the Colonial Restaurant, Witherspoon and Spring, was broken into early one morning last week and $49 in bills, plus change, removed from the cash register.

A township resident is worried about the path Littlebrook School children are wearing across her property . . . she points out that if they (and their successors) don't stop, in 20 years it will become a public thoroughfare . . . she has two alternatives: either rope it off once a year to comply with the law which determines public use, or grow a few barberry bushes.

News Of The THEATRES

"WIFE" IS BAWDY

Restoration Comedy Planned. "The Country Wife" by William Wycherley will be the December production of the Princeton Community Players, to be given in Murray Theatre from Wednesday, December 13 through Saturday, December 16.

Kate Lever, newcomer to the Players, will act the leading role of Margery Pinchwife, and Robert Talbot will play Mr. Horner. Others in the cast are Lorin Zissman, Christine Westwood, Mimi Parnaseles, Gary Ellis, Frances Keene, Harry Weher and Slater Crawford. Esther Usiskin will direct.

Brooks Atkinson wrote of "The Country Wife," that when it was first produced in 1673, the fashionable world of London was in revolt against the "sanctimonious dullness of the stern Commonwealth of Cromwell."

In somewhat more recent times, the play has been given in New York in 1937 with Ruth Gordon and again in 1957 with Julie Harris.

Mail orders for tickets may be sent to Mrs. Eric James, 148 Poe Road, until Monday. After that date, they may be purchased at the University Store. Tickets are $2 with a special faculty and student rate of $1.50.

WHY GO TO NEW YORK?
"Ghosts" Coming Here

IN "GHOSTS": Leueen McGrath and Joseph Marino will star in the David Ross off-Broadway production of Ibsen's "Ghosts," scheduled for McCarter on December 11.

When Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" stimulus and the evening was so enjoyable on both sides of the footlights, that it will be repeated.

The production will take a day of on Monday, December 11, and come to McCarter Theatre for a one-night stand.

"Ghosts" is the second production in David Ross' Ibsen cycle at the Fourth Street Theatre. The first was "Hedda Gabler," the third is unannounced so far, but is scheduled for later in the year.

Mr. Ross founded the Fourth Street Theatre, where "Ghosts" holds forth when it is in Manhattan, in 1934 with "The Dybbuk." Later, he produced a successful Chekhov cycle and currently he is preparing for Broadway the London hit, "Jilly Liar."

Tickets for the McCarter performance of "Ghosts" may be obtained at the box office, or reserved by calling WA 1-8700.

The troupe will play Murray Theatre in a night of improvisational acting this Sunday at 8:30. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the McCarter Theatre box office or at Murray Theatre on Sunday evening.

On Monday, McCarter Guild will sponsor a panel discussion on modern dance, to be held at Murray Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Walter Terry, dance critic, will serve as moderator and Helen Tamiris and Alwyn Nicolai will participate. The meeting is open to the public.

PETE'S COMING

"Reincarnated Troubadour." The restoration of the American folk song to status has largely been accomplished through the "Itinerant intangible hanjo and infectious happy voice of Pete Seeger," according to "Down Beat" magazine.

Referred to sometimes as a "reincarnated troubadour" (see "Down Beat," again), Seeger will appear in McCarter Theatre next Friday, December 8, on the stroke of midnight.

WERE GOING TO HAVE A BABY: Brigitte Bardot has news for Sami Frey, her lover in "The Truth," French melodrama continuing through Saturday at the Garden. The film, in French with English titles, provides an interesting look at French law and universal truth.

ers, an early folk group and in the '50's, he organized The Weavers, which speaks for itself.

Before the '40's, even Seeger was a post-college banjo hobo, tramping and singing his way across the country. At that time, the folksong parodies of the American backwoods were ripe for harvest and not yet cleaned here for profit, and Seeger had the fields to himself.

The Friday concert at McCarter will follow the Triangle show, "Tour de Farce." The audience will please remain seated.

Tickets for Seeger are $2.90 and $1.90, and are available at the McCarter box-office.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Town Without Pity (November 29-December 5) is a courtroom melodrama about the prosecution of four American soldiers for the rape of a German girl. It is not a pretty story, it is not a pretty picture. It is also not very well handled.

Kirk Douglas plays the defense attorney for the four obviously guilty G.I.'s. His only means of avoiding the death penalty is by putting the girl under a blistering cross-examination which everyone knows may destroy her reputation. The girl takes the stand, and the town ultimately turns against her and drives her to suicide. Christine Kaufman, as the rape victim, turns in the top performance in a very demanding role.

However, while the story seems to have a good idea under hand, it soon degenerates into a typical melodrama of small-town vengeance. The ending of the story is somewhat fuzzy, and the presence of so many stock characters (such as the cynical newspaper reporter) doesn't help either. Rating: run-of-the-mill courtroom drama.

Bachelor in Paradise (Dec. 6-12) is a Bob Hope comedy, with all that that description implies. Fans of Hope will enjoy his antics and his wry comments as the author of a book on "How America Lives" who has settled down in a suburban California town (Paradise) to gather first-hand material.

The usual innocent entanglements are misconstrued and Hope winds up in court as the correspondent in three infidelity suits brought by irate husbands in the community. The lavish color and widescreen production features a host of lovely women, including Lana Turner, Janis Paige and Paula Prentiss. The leggy Miss Prentiss, by the way, appears for the third time with Jim Hutton, and the teaming is getting quite boring. She is a talented comedienne in her own right, possibly the best new one Hollywood has produced in some years, and deserves a chance to break away from type-casting.

Director Jack Arnold has mixed enough sophisticated comedy with pure slapstick to suit most people, and Hal Kanter and the late Valentine Davies collaborated on the script to provide Hope with usually amusing lines. Rating: where there's Hope, there's humor.

THE GARDEN

The Truth (November 29-December 2) is a truly frightening picture in which the questions it raises are more important than the film itself. The nature of truth is explored in a probing study by three French lawyers in the French murder trial of a crime of passion.

Henry G. Clouzot wrote, produced and directed the picture, just as he did "Diabolique" of some years back. He also gives a brief explanation of the French system of justice which plays such a big part in the courtroom scenes. Paul Meurisse as the attorney for the victim (a role that doesn't exist in American law) is effectively powerful. Equally powerful and disturbing is Clouzot's handling of the final tragic scene.

As a vehicle for the charms of Brigitte Bardot, the film is less satisfactory. Miss Bardot, looking incredibly unkempt throughout the picture, parades (dressed and undressed) through most of the same scenes she has participated in throughout her career. In that final moment, however, even the sex symbol is gone and

AT HOME

For the Time Being. Let's begin this column on personal gifts with something cozy to wear around the house, while you scramble eggs at 6:45 a.m. or scramble a martini 12 hours later.

At Stacy's the shop in the Lawrence Shopping Center, we examined, and so will you, we bet a white top with deep clown-ruffles at wrist and collar, covered with a black quilted cutaway vest lined with red. Tight black quilted pants go below, and there is a red-trimmed black duster to make the triangle.

Nearby is a wide silk print duster with A-cut, slanting front closing, no collar and the lightness and elegance of a glass of champagne. ($25)

Hay and Clover (we're back on Nassau Street now) has those tight velvet pants in magenta, turquoise and goodness knows what else, topped at the moment with gaudy silk overblouses with long sleeves and round necks. Limes and blues; roses and evergreens; browns and golds all mix together in these silk prints.

Edith's hostess culotte is a modern black and white cotton velvet print (looks like something from an art gallery) with black wool top.

French Shop mixes fleece with Oriental brocade trim in some glorified pajamas with zippered overblouse. Bright coral or bright blue for $29.95.

Tricot Is Queen. Bright rose tricot pants travel with a white overblouse appliqued with flowers at Bellows, and a pajama with loose white tricot overblouse finds itself printed with blue cornflowers and purple butterflies.

A kimono-sleeved top in flame orange tricot (lined) has a waist tie and mandarin collar and some intoxicated butterflies. This one's at Bellows, too.

Elise Goupil wraps you warmly in a quilted white nylon tricot robe with embroidered roses about 10 inches apart, a wide collar and peignoir waist.

Regal ruby-red velvet has been used for a Goupil Christmas duster robe fashioned with a wide collar and brilliant jewel buttons. This shop also has brushed rayon robes in powder, pink, white, coral with a sash-closing and no buttons.

For a girlish look, choose Goupil's quilted striped nylon in a bark-like texture, cut with short, gathered skirt and coachman buttons.

The lightest-weight robe you could imagine is Goupil's basketweave wool with satin-bound collar and satin bows and buttons. It is bright melon pink or pale blue, lined with chiffon.

The bed-jacket at Goupil's shop is a chiffon velvet in rayon and silk, with deep cerise lace at collar and cuffs, or collarless with pointed lace going down the front.

My Jacket, Please. Clayton's likes a bedjacket and matching gown in "Candlelight" with round neck, puffed sleeves, lace and embroidered flowers. (These are very full puffed sleeves, by the way.

Shorts Pour Rire

Some of the more ribald sayings from that fine old classic, "Fractured French" (there were LESS ribald sayings? have been reverently inscribed, with cartoons, on a pair of men's shorts at the University.

You will, of course, recall with nostalgic pleasure many of these translations. "Purce Mongole" is sure to have remained in your mind. And how could you have forgotten "Jeanne d'Arc" ("no light in the bathroom") or "Entrechal" ("Let the cat in.")? Others will come fondly to mind again as you read this shorts story before gift-wrapping it.

Only one thing disturbs us faintly: the U. Store salesman describes this as a "conversation piece." A pair of SHORTS?

Watch that coffee cup! A Japanese (sort of) bed-jacket is quilted rayon with frogs at the neckline. With a collar, it's $10.95, and without a collar, it's $12.95, which doesn't make sense to us, but there you are, take it from Clayton's.

Edith's wraps everything up in a gold and white brocade quilted robe with matching waltz gown covered with golden fleurs de lis. The robe has off-center detail down the back, and gold buttons.

A short nylon tricot gown at Edith's has a red sash and a cocktail dress and cherries on the front ("I'm just an old-fashioned girl") and a black quilted nylon robe piped in red, to go over it all.

Shift gowns in this shop are woven in such colors as sapphire coral and the usual pastels.

How about the one that says "je vous aime" (nightgowns call for "tu" in our lexicon) on one side and "I Love You" on the other, with French and American flags? Mon Dieu.

Bellows lays a deep, ruffled black lace cape over a full black tricot gown. Pink lines both gown and cape. Also in a raspberry red.

Stacy opens out the folds of a bright cherry-red gown with square-necked matching peignoir. Pajama fans will prefer the red tricot pants with a tricot-lined lace top that has a little collar.

Seampruf's Sleepcoat at Baileys is $5.98, combining pull sleeves and a lace-edged neck in blue or pink. An apricot waltz gown has cerise lace trim and wide, crushed straps. If you don't like apricots, would turquoises suit you? Both colors available.

Kung Ping brings from Hong Kong the happy coat, in one of the palest spectra we've ever seen: an almost invisible yellow, soft jade, a cloudy-sky blue and so on.

Many a Ship, Lingerie this Christmas follows the colorful trail blazed in former holiday seasons. Edith has Bikinis, half-slips and bra in wild strokes of blue or coral on white.

Bellows offers flowered black half-slips ($12.95) in pure silk, and soft mosaic print silk half-slips that have an elegance not usually associated with a muted print that will "go with everything."

Elise Goupil brings from Switzerland a collection of handmade lingerie, woven of nylon crepe on the old Crepe Georgette looms in Switzerland. Full length gowns and slips are featured in this important and imported group.

With all of this, you have an infinite choice in footwear, but you'll probably look first at those overblown caterpillar slippers you've seen all fall. Warmest, friskiest things ever, Nassau Shoe Tree has them in eye-blinking pink or aqua. Stacy has them in pink, red or gold. Hulitt's has them in pink or blue. Bellows has them, too, and at this shop we saw a customer about two years old patting a slipper gently and saying, "Kitty-cat, kitty-cat."

Hulitt's brings out Oomphies' Camelie in natural suede with hand-stitched tow and a ruff that looks like red fox, but is really orlon. "They're Topps" is the English Shop phrase for woolly slippers.

Daniel Green, who is not such an old fogey as you think, presents "Ming" in brocade, black, red or turquoise with a small button at the end of a pointed vamp and a low wedge heel. At Hulitt's.

Tinsel pompons enliven a red or black slipper, and a pointy toe leads the way for a black slipper with multi-color embroidery and diamonds and gold and Tiffany knows what all.

For $3.95, Hulitt's will give you flexible gold or silver slippers and slippers embroidered in petit-point (or so it seems) are in unobtrusive folding cases.

Kung Ping's slippers are red or blue velvet with embroidery-like flocking on the vamp. From Hong Kong, at $3.95 and $3.50.

The Nassau Bootery suggests a lame slipper at $4.98 with slim lines and tongue that outlines itself against the instep.

White or blue leather makes a moccasin rimmed with white fur and buckled with a small gold-edged buckle. The Bootery also has orlon fleece slippers that look like big coral or turquoise snowballs. The Sioux Mox is grain leather with lamb's-wool lining and stitching around the sole and upper $6.95.

WHERE'S DADDY!

Signing Checks. At the Robert Hall store on Route One, you can buy Harris tweed sports jackets for $31.95, in misty checks. A shadow-checked blazer, small, (checks small, not blazer), is $22.95 and the permanently creased slacks to go with these jackets are $6.88 in wool flannel, $9.95 in gabardine.

You might prefer the solid black wool mohair suit at $39.95, or its midnight blue cousin in gabardine for the same price. All-wool worsted suits at Robert Hall are $44.95.

Harry Ballot at 20 Nassau is partial to the Strouk jacket by H. Freeman, done in plaid, check or warm solid tones. Harris tweed at the University Store is $55 for the new heather brown and heather blue.

tones. Lots of plaid and Shetland, too.

Bishop's West Coast Chevrolt is the proud item at the U Store, where it comes in herringbones of grey, brown and olive. Or these wear a Harris tweed topcoat, or a charcoal grey wool herringbone which can be worn instead of a Chesterfield for dress.

Holding a finger out to the weather, Harry Ballot recommends Him and Her (She and He? His and Hers?) London Fog Raincoats, which are washable and available in all sizes, even an 8-petite (this one is for "HER").

English Shop presents that Rodex tweed, done this time with a black caracul collar for special splendor. To ride in, there is a Squire Coat, which is English Shop talk for a Car Coat, done in imported suede with sheep's wool lining, or suede and corduroy with heavy red flannel lining, or fawn color suede.

Downhill! Austrian reversible ski jackets, English Shop, will take you down any slope and back again. They are all nylon, padded with aerilic fiber and braced against wind and rain. Washable.

On the shirt side, Lahey's on Nassau Street has Arrow's Chevillia, a light brushed plaid that feels like challis but isn't really wool at all. If you want wool, Lahey's can provide, using Arrow's part-wool Regency shirt in checks and plaids of grey and sage.

Oregon comes to Nassau in Harry Ballot's perennial Pendleton wool plaid shirts, and

Boxes and Bottletops

Half the fun of giving and receiving perfumes comes from the packaging. Tinsel boxes, gold by the minute, lucent wrappings—look over the toiletries counter at Thorne's and you'll see what we mean.

"Intimate" lotion for hands or body, is swathed in pink or blue net and topped with a seductive masked face. Emeraude's perfumes and toilet waters have jeweled caps.

Ciro's "Danger," "Reflexions" and "New Horizons" are iridescent blue and pink and Fougere Royale's "Pour Hommes" is so devastatingly masculine in its squared off bottle that you could even give it to a teenager.

Manhattan pays a visit, too, in the backbone wash-and-wear shirts.

Hathaway's Viyella is the pet of the English Shop. All tartans and clans are accounted for here, button down or plain. Is there a man in town who hasn't received a red vest for Christmas? If there is such a gap in his life, look at the University Store's flannels with brass buttons. If he's got red, ask for the olive green ones, $10.95.

Warm and Dry. Reversibles, should you dribble on one side, are done in tartans and solids for $15.50. Other vests are Tattersall favorites.

Actually, the sweater collection at the U Store may be the thing that draws your eye. Mohair and wool full-fashioned sweaters have a saddle shoulder. V or crew neck and a breathless spill of colors, including black burgundy, luggage, brown marl (that's for us), moss green, light blue. . . . Scotland sends a cable cardigan with saddle shoulder done in green gold, old gold (gold? from Scotland?), blue mix (vintage Scotch?), grey and tan.

English Shop has a Geelong made of lamb's wool as soft as cashmere, knit without sleeves, or with in heather shades. Bulkies here are all imports.

U. Store says it has more socks than a centipede. Sized and stretch socks begin at a dollar and go to $4.50, with a very special one at $2.50, made of wool, vicuna, alpaca and nylon in shadow stripes.

Listen to these colors: cordovan, walnut green, leaf gold, blue spruce and red beech. Pretty fancy for a sock, aren't they?

Harry Ballot's viyella socks will be replaced if they shrink by so much as an iota.

After 5. Robes at the University Store are $10.95 (terry) to $21.50 (wool and nylon, machine washable), with lots in between. Robes at Kung Ping are the happy-coat variety, with one splendid one in raw silk stripes of maroon, grey and deep green, like a tweed, almost, for $10.50.

A black silk men's robe at Kung Ping has small, widely-spaced medallions and a $45 price tag.

MUSIC In Princeton

SUTHERLAND SINGS

To Capaci Audience. On Tuesday evening at McCarter Theatre, Series I of the Princeton University Concerts began with a recital by Joan Sutherland, who was accompanied at the piano by her husband, Richard Bonynge. The older members of the audience may have recalled the days of Nellie Melba and company immediately upon opening the program; there was almost nothing there which was not standard on Dame Nellie's programs, or, for that matter, on Jennie Lind's, fifty years earlier. This was strictly Hippodrome fare.

Operatic singers of this ilk rarely make satisfactory recitalists by modern standards, and Miss Sutherland is no exception. This is not to say that she sang badly, but that what she sings well (i.e., opera) is not well served on the concert stage, with only a piano for accompaniment; the restricted dramatic framework does justice neither to the music nor to the singer. Opera should be sung in the opera house.

And drawing-room songs should be sung in the drawing-room. Most opera singers leave their programs with unfortunate attempts at the German lied, or something high-minded. Miss Sutherland spared us this particular ordeal, subjecting us instead to the bottom of Melba's barrel of encore pieces: Tosca's "Scena," Delibes' "Les filles de Cadix," and so on, complete with word-book (probably the same one that Melba used). It is difficult to suggest a suitable recital repertoire for the coloratura soprano which may be the reason why they make such unsatisfactory recitalists.

So much for the program, whose respectable musical content was limited to four numbers: two Handel arias, and the Mad Scenes from Bellini's "I Puritani" and Thomas's "Hamlet"; of these, the latter two were last-minute substitutions for additional coloratura trash. Except for the smoothness of the singing, the Handel items were unremarkable from a vocal point of view; the floritura was pumped out in conservatory style, and Mr. Bonynge's facile but lifeless playing detracted considerably from the pleasure of the vocal production.

One technical feature was of note, and remained so throughout the evening: Miss Sutherland's trill, which is the best to be heard for miles around. She can apparently trill on any note, and at any volume level, and it is a wonderful thing to behold.

The operatic selections aroused the greatest enthusiasm from the audience, and with justice; despite the limitations already mentioned, Miss Sutherland did her best singing here. On the basis of this singing, however, she is not the prima donna of the ages that her admirers would claim her to be.

At least one other contemporary singer, whose name need hardly be mentioned here, has shown what musicianship and imagination can do for the "bel canto" style of operatic writing, and it is exactly these attributes which Miss Sutherland seems to lack—the art of keeping the shape of a B line melody always in view, of not smothering it in a welter of artificial "expressive" detail. The aforementioned other singer is for was, when last heard from in these parts) a much more significant artist, even without Miss Sutherland's technical polish.

Technical polish is all well and good, but is not the be-all and end-all singing; it was not so even in the so-called "Golden Age" of singing, and is certainly not so now. When Miss Sutherland can sing a Schubert lied as well as the late Elisabeth Schumann, she will be a great singer as well as a proficient vocal acrobat, and her operatic singling will be the better for what she has learned. She would do well to consider her sources of musical advice if she wishes to be thought of as more than just another coloratura who sang herself out in a few brilliant years.

As encores, Miss Sutherland offered Sir Julius Benedict's "The Gypsy and the Bird," from the bottom of Jenny Lind's barrel, and the cabaret, to the Fountain aria from Donizetti's "Lucia." Mr. Bonynge's accompaniments, throughout the evening, were no better than the music deserved.

FIRST CONCERT PLANNED By University Orchestra. The chamber orchestra of undergraduates, graduate students and faculty, known as the Princeton University Orchestra will present its first concert of the season this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in Alexander Hall under the sponsorship of the Friends of Music.

Haydn's overture to his opera "Armida," the Beethoven Concerto No. 4 in G, Opus 58 for piano and orchestra; Sibelius' "Finlandia" and a modern work, "Chamber Concerto" by George Burt will constitute the program. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct.

Robert Bailey, young pianist in the University's music department, will be the soloist in the Beethoven work. An Assistant in Instruction in the music department and a graduate student of music history, Mr. Bailey is also a pupil of Edward Stuermann.

Mr. Harsanyi is the music director and conductor of the Princeton Symphony Orchestra, the Trenton Symphony Orchestra and the Colonial Symphony of Madison, N. J.

In addition, he has been a member of the faculties of Princeton University and Westminster Choir College, serving in these capacities for the past nine years.

FOR THE YOUNG

"Young Audiences" Here. The youngest listeners and the finest music will be brought together this Friday at two Princeton schools.

The Concord Woodwind Quintet will play at Witterspoon and Valley Road schools in the first "Young Audiences" concert of the current school year.

On January 10, the Elsenberg String Quartet will play at Johnson Park and Witterspoon schools and on January 20, the quartet will appear for Littlebrook and Riverside.

At a Young Audiences concert, school children hear an hour's music played by professional musicians, and although the music is selected with the young in mind, there is no condescension. Only the finest music is performed.

Following the concert, the musicians answer questions from the children about the instruments, the music and even about themselves.

Arrangements for these programs are made by a committee consisting of Mrs. Jane Green, Mrs. Virginia Switten and Sylvan Friedman.

"MESSIAH" TO BE SUNG By Somerset Group. A 200-voice chorus will join with the Somerset Symphony Orchestra in a presentation of the Christmas music from Handel's "Messiah."

The performance will be given Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Bridgewater Raritan High School with Anthony J. Camillo leading the orchestra and Gene Ferguson directing the chorus.

Soloists in the "Messiah" portions will be Lee Pagano and Mr. Ferguson.

The concert is being offered by the South Somerset Guild of Creative Arts, and tickets may be reserved by calling Mrs. Raymond Fatto, Flanders 9-5373.

Mr. Camillo, conductor of the orchestra, is a resident of Hillsborough Township, and music director for the Middlesex High School. He holds a Master of Music degree from Columbia University.

Mr. Ferguson, who is a tenor, is vocal instructor at Bound Brook High School and Lee Pagano, soprano, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music.

TOWN TOPICS, Nov. 29, 1951: A probable major tragedy was averted when Campus Club on Prospect Street was gutted by fire . . . the flames broke out at 2 a.m. — had they started an hour later, 23 girls staying at Campus for the weekend would have been asleep in the club dormitory . . . defective wiring was set forth as a possible cause of the fire, which caused damage close to $100,000.

Princetonians joined other motorists in trying out the new Turnpike, whose 118-mile length was opened to traffic for the first time . . . all drivers were warned that if they ran out of gas, the charge would be double that for driving the entire length of the Pike . . . adopting a policy years ahead of the State's current 60-70 excessive speed law, Borough Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro began revoking the licenses of those brought before him on charges of turning residential streets in Princeton into speedways.

Football fans in the community were steamed up over the Dartmouth-Princeton football game in which Dick Karmier, closing out his career, suffered a broken nose and a concussion at the hands of Dartmouth tacklers . . . the Tigers won, 13-0, for their 22d straight, but the game went into memory as the roughest in Palmer Stadium's 37 year-history . . . on a basis of its second 9-for-9 season, Princeton won the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of eastern supremacy, for the second year in a row.

Under the direction of Elmore Day, Princeton High School was reading "Life with Father" . . . Robert McClusky and Susan Sheldrick were cast in the leading roles, while others included Phyllis Bellows, Douglas Campbell, Ada Brown, Susan Kinnell, Priscilla Muller, Anna Booth, Marlene Scott, Richard Buxton, William West, James Hinkel, Richard Brown, Lois Ellis, Donald Wible and Bruce Seavy.

The Playhouse was showing "Detective Story" with Kirk Douglas and Eleanor Parker . . . a revival of "You Can't Take It with You," starring James Stewart and Jean Arthur, was the Garden's offering.

Among the pastors who would deliver sermons on Sunday were the Rev. Milton J. Nauss at the Lutheran Church; the Rev. H. Martin P. Davidson of Trinity Episcopal; the Rev. John W. Johnson at Mount Pisgah; the Rev. Roland F. Chandler at Princeton Baptist in Penns Neck . . . S. Roy Heath was the scheduled speaker at the newly-formed Unitarian Fellowship, which was meeting at Princeton Country Day School.

Princeton Group Arts planned an exhibition of the work of Princeton area residents who had at one time or another been members of its workshops . . . on view at its 14 Spring Street headquarters were paintings and photographs by Miss Elizabeth Crawford, Miss Muriel Elwen, Mrs. Harry H. Farr, Marshall Harrington, Mrs. Philip K. Hitt, Miss Angelina MacLaren, Mrs. L. S. Nergaard, John W. Owens, Doris C. Skeels, Blackwell Smith, Mrs. Richard L. Stoddard, Mrs. J. The program will be broadcast from 7 to 8 p.m. Mrs. Boyd will play six works, including Chopin's "Nocturne in E flat" and Brahms' "Ballad in D minor." A former student of Theodor Leschetizky, teacher of Paderewski, Mrs. Boyd was twice soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

N.Y.U. Names Hester

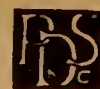

Dr. James M. Hester of 68 Woodland Drive was named this week as president of New York University, at 37, the youngest man ever to head the 130-year old institution.

Dr. Hester has been serving as dean of N.Y.U.'s graduate school of arts and sciences, a post to which he was appointed in September, 1960. He will succeed Dr. Carroll V. Newsom, who resigned from the presidency earlier this fall to join a publishing firm.

A native of Chester, Pa., Dr. Hester graduated from Princeton summa cum laude in the humanities in 1946. He was named a Rhodes Scholar, and at Oxford earned a masters degree in philosophy, politics and economics, and a doctorate in international affairs.

Before joining the administration at N.Y.U., Dr. Hester was provost and then vice-president of Long Island University. He will assume his new duties at N.Y.U. on January 1.

Voices Are Mature. Musicians who have heard the Princeton High School Choir have commented on the maturity of the singers' voices. They are said to sound more like second or third-year college students than high school boys and girls.

The rigorous training they receive under Mr. Hilbish produces some amusing results. One girl who graduated in June from the Choir, went off to college this fall and was asked by the head of the college music department to sight-read for him.

He handed her a copy of the Bach "Magnificat" and asked her to read the soprano part.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I know that part by heart already."

Somewhat taken aback, he asked her then to read the second soprano part.

"I'm afraid I'll have to decline again," she said, sweetly, "you see, we covered all this in the Princeton High School Choir."

RICHARDS GIVEN NAILS

Dating From Crucifixion, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Richards of Woodville House are the possessors of 13 iron nails which were discovered last summer in Scotland and date from the time of the crucifixion of Christ.

NAILS FROM THE TIME OF CHRIST: These 13 iron nails are part of a seven-ton collection found in Scotland last summer at the site of a 1,900-year-old Roman fortress. They are now the property of Alan Richards of Princeton, who has given two of them to the Princeton University Library and two to Princeton High School. The largest nails, in the foreground, are 16 inches long and the smallest are two inches. Mr. Richards and his wife put in a request for the nails last summer during a trip to Scotland, and the shipment arrived last week. (Alan Richards Photo)

The nails range in length from two to 16 inches. Because the nails had been buried under six feet of earth they suffered little damage from rust and were in good condition when discovered at the site of an ancient Roman fort.

Dr. I. A. Richmond, professor of Archaeology of the Roman Empire at Oxford University, discovered some 750,000 such nails at the site. Unable to use all of them, Dr. Richmond gave most of the nails to Colvilles, Ltd., a Scottish steel company.

Mr. Richards heard about the find when he and his wife visited his birthplace in Scotland last summer. His father had been a director of the Colvilles firm and Mr. Richards knew the present management. His request for a share in the find was fulfilled last week when the 13 nails arrived in the mail.

Mr. Richards said he will offer several of the nails to the Princeton University library. Mrs. Richards, a Latin teacher at Princeton High School, plans to present one of the nails to the high school Latin department.

—UNCLE FRIFZE

Unseasonably cool temperatures have been the story for the past week—although a pleasant high of 60 was recorded on Sunday. Most early morning readings are well below freezing.

More of the same, the Man says, for the next few days, with the average temperature several degrees below normal. November, going into the records as a dry month, will remain that way, with December following suit this weekend. No real precipitation in sight.

a new educational center in Princeton Borough was taken Tuesday night when the Borough Board of Education voted to empower its president, Graham Rohrer, to begin official negotiations for acquisition of the needed land. The proposed site, an 18.62-acre plot near Princeton High School, belongs to Westminster Choir College.

Purchase of the land, if agreed to by the Choir College, would provide space for construction of a new grade school center to replace the present Nassau Street and Witherspoon Street Schools. The latter properties would then be sold to provide funds and possible increased rateables for the Borough. (For details, see "This Is Princeton," Page 1.)

Praise of the Board of Education for working out this solution to the problem of replacement of Nassau and Witherspoon Street Schools was voiced at the meeting by representatives of the Borough PTA. "We all owe a great debt to the board," said Mrs. D. Barton Stevens, PTA first vice president. "We think this plan is just fine."

The only criticism came from Robert R. Palmer of 200 Prospect Street, who has filed as a candidate for election to the board. Mr. Palmer suggested that having all the Borough schools in one location would create traffic congestion, particularly in winter. He also said he thought grade school children might be endangered by high school drivers.

Advantages Cited. In reply to these points, Mr. Rohrer said that 88 percent of the grade school students would live within a mile of the new school and would be able to walk, thus avoiding congestion of cars. He also said that having all the schools in one location would permit increased police supervision of students. Chester R. Stroup, superintendent of schools, added that the time schedules for the grade schools and the high school are different, so that grade school students would not be on the streets at the same time as high school students.

Mr. Rohrer also pointed out that the proposed new location would greatly reduce the number of children who have to cross Nassau Street to get to school. This point was also emphasized by Mrs. Stevens, who asked Mr. Palmer, "Have you delivered children to either the Nassau Street or Witherspoon Street Schools lately? No traffic could be worse than that."

In other action, the Board of Education "reluctantly" declined an invitation from the University of Washington for we realize the tremendous

Mr. Rohrer said, "the cost of

Mrs. Bernice Miller was ap-vancement programs and suggest a plan which would be best for Princeton Borough.

Other members of the commitpointed following a report by Superintendent Stroup on a teacher appraisal conference he recently attended, in which various merit pay systems were discussed.

approval was given to a plan by Mr. Stroup for establish-

Mr. Rohrer announced that which send students to Prince-

QUORUM IS SPEEDY
In Township Hall, Three Township Committeemen, a bare quorum, met in Township Hall Monday night and held an hour-long meeting;
one of the briefest on record.
In the course of the meeting, Committee heard three recommendations from the Traffic Safety Committee, accepted two of them and tabled a controversial third.

According to the first recommendation, parking will be prohibited on the south side of Birch Avenue, reversing the present regulation which bans it on the north. According to the second provision, parking will be prohibited on the north side of Franklin.
The south side will be open to parking except for the 150 feet that lie along the street west of the Snowden Lane intersection.

The third recommendation, to prohibit parking on the north side of Valley Road for the full length of the street, was tabled. Committeeman Maurice F. Healey, Jr., protested the recommendation because he said, it would be hazardous to allow south-side parking on Valley next to the school where children could run out from between parked cars.

Those who disagreed with Mr. Healey suggested that it was even more hazardous to have children running across the street to cars parked on the north side, and so the proposal was tabled for further discussion.

Committee passed on first reading an amendment to the alcoholic beverages ordinance.
The amendment allows taverns to be open from 10 p.m. to midnight on New Year's Eve when the holiday occurs on a Sunday, as it does this year.
Public hearing will be held
December 18 at 8 p.m.

School, made one of the highest marks in the State Police examinations given in February. He is the second of the two new patrolmen who were budgeted into the Township police department in 1961.

Committee tabled the request of W. Richard Hubbard, 159 Valley Road, for a livery license. Mr. Hubbard already holds a Borough taxi license and the Township's livery permission would allow him to accept calls at his home, but not to cruise.

The request was tabled until Committee can find out whether Mr. Hubbard, in operating a livery service from his Valley Road home, would be in violation of the zoning ordinance.

MRS. REEVES HONORED

Agency Pays Tribute. The Family Service Agency has made public a portion of the minutes of its meeting of November 20, in which it pays tribute to the late Mrs. Mabel Reeves. She served as its executive secretary for many years prior to her death on November 18.

The text of the tribute, which was forwarded to her husband, Joseph A. Reeves, and her son, John J. Reeves, "Mabel Reeves, long-honored friend and associate, who since 1932, when she came to the Agency as a young case-worker during the Depression, until her death on November 18, 1961 as Executive Secretary, served many hundreds of bewildered, bereft or ailing Princeton men, women and children and their families with gentle good sense, scrupulous fairness and irresistible good humor.

"In addition to her wide knowledge of social work, she possessed the rare grace of self-effacement; so much so that her unheralded words and achievements, which appeared so effortless when discussed, were in reality the fruit of much patient labor, skill and forethought. The perceptive insight into the deeper recesses of the human heart made her succeed in getting people to help themselves.

"She would find the hidden good, the latent ability or character in even the most unpromising material. Unshaken by failure of plan or human nature, she would swiftly reassess a given situation and act anew without bitterness. Her instinct for what was right and possible was equalled only by her humanity and tact. Since she became aware three years ago that her life would be forfeit to cancer, she courageously carried out every obligation and duty with her usual meticulous consideration of others and in unaffected simplicity totally without self-pity.

"The best tribute to this very gallant woman, to whom we in Princeton, and we in the Family Service Agency in particular, owe so much, will be that we strive to the best of our ability so that the unmet needs of our fellow citizens in trouble are responded to with wisdom, dignity and compassion."

FOUR DRIVERS FINED

For Speeding. Four area motorists have been fined for speeding by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr. They are Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, 31, Little Brook Road, $24; Anthony Stefanelli, Jr., 22, Lawrenceville Road, $27; James D. McIntyre, 27, of 302 Nassau Street, $20; and Albert King, Jr., 21, 30 Franklin Parkway, Franklin Park, $19. All except Mr. McIntyre pleaded guilty.

Gordon L. Cupples, 19, 37 Moran Avenue, paid $25 in fines, $15 for driving an unsafe vehicle and $10 for failing to register a change in his address. Mikio Sato, 33, 35 Einstein Drive, and Arthur Riccio, Jr., 26, 15 Humbert Street, were each fined $15 for careless driving. Mr. Riccio also had his license revoked 30 days. Both pleaded guilty.

In other cases, Howard Wilson, Jr., 33, Witherspoon Street was fined $12 for a red light violation; James Perkins, 50, 256 Edgerstoune Road, $12,

SOUND OF MUSIC: Violin,

flute, clarinet—just name your instrument and you'll get a chance to play it in the new amateur orchestra at Princeton YMCA. The orchestra, organized this fall as part of the YM's adult program, meets every Wednesday evening at the Y Building on Avalon Place. More members are needed, and anyone interested in joining is asked to call the YMCA office at Walnut 1-1825. Robert E. Mueller of Roosevelt is conductor of the group, which is already playing classical music with zest and skill. Current members include Mrs. M. D. Krukal of 60 Littlebrook Road (upper left); Richard G. Small of Kingston (upper right); Mrs. John F. Wentworth of 41 Park Place (lower left); and Stefan Martin of Roosevelt (lower right). (Staff Photos)

GAS STATION DISPOSED

SATURDAY MORNING CONCERT: Carol Hersh, Princeton High School senior (at piano), entertains residents of Merwick, Princeton Hospital's geriatric unit, at concert each Saturday morning. Carol, a piano student since she was three, is also a talented singer and a member of the Princeton High School Choir. She plays and sings works of various composers or collections of pieces from different countries, prefacing each performance with a brief description. Her audience here includes Mrs. Anna Dilworth (standing behind piano) and (seated, left to right Miss Margaretta Stevenson, Mrs. Carrie Lindstrom and Miss Sarah Haines. At right is another rapt listener, Miss Daisy Cummins, one of the founders of The Cummins Shop. (Staff Photos)

Topics Of The Town

of Markham Road and Nassau Street.

The committee has urged area residents to attend a hearing before the board on the company's request this Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Borough Engineering Building, 102 Witherspoon Street. The committee has obtained several hundred signatures on petitions opposing the gas station. Robert L. Clifford of 132 Patton Avenue, speaking for the committee, said the group has also retained Frank Curran of the legal firm of Smith, Stratton and Wise, to represent its interests in court. The committee has urged residents to write the zoning board in opposition to the proposed gas station.

MUSIC AT MERWICK

Thanks To Carol Hersh, Residents of Merwick, Princeton Hospital's home for geriatric patients, are being offered a free concert and music lesson each week, thanks to the volunteer efforts of a 16-year-old Princeton High School senior with a flair for music. She is Carol Hersh of 179 Riverside Drive, a talented pianist and singer.

Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hersh, has been studying piano since she was 3. Last spring, she won first prize in the piano division of the Anna B. Stokes Memorial Music Contest, and a newspaper account of her award caught the attention of Mrs. Sidney Crane, program director at Merwick.

Mrs. Crane, always on the lookout for volunteer workers to aid in the entertainment program at Merwick, got in touch with Carol and asked if she would be willing to give a half-hour concert. Carol agreed readily, and the concert turned out to be the first in a series which has been going on ever since.

"One of the guests came up to me afterwards and told me how much she had enjoyed the concert and how sorry she was never to have studied music," Carol explained. "I hope to become a doctor someday—I'm going to study pre-med in college—and the idea of working at Merwick tied in with that. So I offered to put on a series of music seminars, and I'm still here."

Lessons Included. Carol tries to make each session a real music seminar, centered around a particular composer or a group of compositions which tie together, such as several works from the same country. She tells a little bit of background about each piece before she plays it, and explains the meaning of a song in a foreign language. "I try to avoid technical details and concentrate on the aspects of the music which have general human interest," Carol said. "I also tell something about the style of the music and try to tie in new pieces with ones which I have played before."

Carol staged her music seminars two or three mornings a week during the summer. Now that school is in session, however, she has had to cut down to just once a week, on Saturday mornings.

"I'd like to continue the work as long as possible," she said. "I really enjoy it and find it very satisfying. Every once in a while the guests will start singing along with me, and that's the most satisfying part of all. That's when I know I'm really doing well!"

Ties. . . Look at Money Tree's ribbon silks in basket-weave monochromes or basket-weave pairs like tan and black. Two blues, two wines. These are $7.50.

The scarf that interested us most was the one at Lahey's woven in a narrow six inches with buttons at top and bottom to make sure the winds keep out. It's $3.50.

U Store's scarf-of-the-year is a reversible cashmere for $13.95, but a runner-up is the Italian paisley or print silk, combined with solid wool.

Back to Robert Hall again, we find sports shirts in the $3.80 bracket, cut in Ivy style with tapered bodies and plaids like magenta and blue (not combined, you understand). Knit sports shirts in acrilan green, blue, lilac or red, are $2.89.

To tuck in that Vivella stocking. . . Laheys $14 black morocco leather set of bill-fold, cigarette case, lighter and key case . . . or the jewel case, long and narrow, with a pattern of gold shields on the black outside.

To tuck that Vivella stocking into . . . Hult's mooseasin lined with brown orlon pile which is repeated on top of the vamp.

The two-tie mooseasin lined with fleece . . . the golden tan slipper with a red lining.

Or the Nassau Bootery's crepe soled slipper, sturdy enough for a bit of outdoors. $6.95, lined with shearling lambskin . . . the traditional slipper in mahogany for $4.95.

Brophy's travel slippers of deerskin in matching deerskin case for travelers. . . Storm boots for hockey devotees with poor circulation.

PARTY!

Who's Ready? Nassau Shoe Tree, for one, with a lace brocade sandal (dye any color you wish) secured to your foot with gold leather straps and a jeweled chain.

The shop also suggests a gold or silver lame shoe trimmed with gold or silver kid and fastened with jeweled buckle. Imported evening bags go along for the ride. Look at the long envelope bag in gold and bronze print, with shoe to match.

Hult's offers to dye a white silk pump for you. And they present, for less festive occasions, a shell of black nylon net. Mind the snowdrifts in that one.

So . . . off to the ball. • Elise Goupil: gold silk with bell tune skirt, boat neckline, cap sleeves. . . tangerine brocade with high neck, no sleeves, narrow skirt. • Hong Kong silk faille 3-piece with appliqued arrow motif.

A Robe for a Lady

The other day we heard a shopper hewal the lack—so she thought—of the graceful, flattering, but still ladylike, robe. "Nothing but black lace or else fuddy-duddy things for grandma," she complained. Is she right? Of course not!

• Elise Goupil: Creamy viyella with pale rosehuds, or pink viyella with deep rose blooms in a full or duster-length robe with classic cut.

• Edith: Powder blue or pink acrilan pile "pouf" robe, plain and demure.

• Bellows: floor-length ball gown in deep gold satin with flowing bronze panels at the back. Empire waist with brilliants. . . raspberry chiffon with a straight skirt and pleated bodice. . . strapless cut-velvet in a wild shade of coral.

• Hay and Clover: wool evening skirt in grey and black plaid. . . chiffon skirt with sleeveless brocade top, brown or orange.

• Mayme Mead: Herbert Sondheim's silk brocade with surplice back and diagonal rummerbund. . . silver (gold) coat dress with complete skirt underneath. . . in larger sizes, royal and black silk arcade by Sondheim.

Bellows (tapestry satin pouch, rigid oval pillbox of black tuckled silk); French (gold and satin snap purses); Clayton's (iridescence, or restrained black silk).

Jewelry this year is uniformly big, big, big. Three, four strand necklaces of hunky baroque stones combine with crystals of pearls to make the heaviest jewelry we've seen in a long time.

Jewelry is new this year at Mary Gill, where the many-stranded necklace is displayed along with the Florentine pin, another Christmas favorite.

WE DANES—AND YOU FOOD AND DRINK

What We eat,
How We eat it, and What We do not eat.

People have dinner — consisting of almost anything — about six or seven o'clock in the evening. We call it "Mid-dag" — midday — but this is not as unreasonable as it sounds. The main dish is meat, which means steak, veal cutlet, pork chop, or chicken. Fish is both plentiful and excellent in Denmark, and very few households look upon it as food in the proper sense of the word. There are Danish specialties such as lobster and oyster for the rich; there are mussels and tripe for the eccentric. Nobody eats rabbits or horseflesh if he or she can help it; but everybody — or nearly everybody — eats game and venison in the winter season with enthusiasm.

Vegetables are good, of course, but many Danes look upon them as intended for cows, sheep, and rabbits.

Danish specialties are "kogt Torsk" (boiled cod), "engelsk Bøf" (English steak in a form unknown to the English), "gule Aertter" (a soup made of dried peas and served with pork, sausages, or, sometimes, pickled goose), "stegt Aal" (fried eel which foreigners too often assume to be fried snake), "Flaesksteg med Rodkaal" (roast pork and red cabbage) and "Frikadeller" (trissoles). We have occasional unfortunate lapses such as "Sodsuppe," which is a sweet soup made of fruit juice, "Ollebrod" (beer soup) which is made of rye bread with beer in it, and different kinds of porridges of which we are rather proud. The porridge is served as a first course at home. It is not to be had at restaurants, possibly because it is thought that travellers do not come to Denmark to eat porridge — even of different varieties — and they might not realize how very good it is.

It should be stressed once again that private entertaining always presupposes a creaking table. Only half the food is ever eaten, after which the family proceeds to live on the "left-overs" for the next few days. Remember, however, that guests are always expected to eat up what they have taken on their plates. You can safely partake sparingly of the first dish served. It will be handed round once or twice again — except in Jutland. There it is usual to hand it round five times and the visitor is considered either to be ill or not to like the food if he does not help himself at least four times.

with triangular face and free-form stones for features. A mass of gold with a pearl top makes a long pin.

Trifari, at Mayne Mead, is Florentine, with pansy pin and earrings and a Florentine gold spiral.

Cummins has those hobby and sports pins in silver, and an enchanting little cat face pin with six identical lines representing whiskers and eyes.

Jade is the talisman at Kung Ping, where you may buy an antique jade ring set in filigree gold for $95, or two uncut ovals of jade for $25 a pair.

Forer's Pharmacy dangles a diamond-shaped watch on a chain, and hucks the necklace trend with a single strand of pearls.

Another trend-resister is Nassau Pharmacy, with a long, long, single strand of multi-color beads. (But plenty of bib necklaces here, even so.) Jeweled crosses and stars of David here, too.

Hand-wrought sterling or copper jewelry by Stuart Nye is at The Country Mouse. Two feather earrings, for example. For $2, you may have a circle of copper for your wrist, and

On a Small Scale

That's what they have at Bellows: a small scale to weigh the calories you shouldn't eat with each meal. It's $1, and belongs with all the small inconsequential things that are fun to give.

Bellows carousel with hooks for the framed pictures of your children (or your pet cats or your boy friends, depending on age and temperament) belongs in the same card file.

Money Tree recommends a crystal paper-weight with an initial (order NOW) or a hand-lettered oval brass door plate with your name or the name of your house (order NOW).

Princeton Gift Shop on Palmer Square has Florentine silver picture frames in small ovals and squares, and, for some reason known only to the Florentines, pill-boxes to match.

At the same shop, you'll find giddy Mexican lipstick holders shaped like a girl and colored like those bright Mexican candles.

Hinkson's writes your Christmas thank-yous on tinted paper with a matching pen whose ink is slightly darker than the paper: blue, red, green and a good teenage purple.

Bellows has "boudoir pliers" in gold with pink and blue diamonds ($1). Country Mouse and The Cummins Shop have filligree gold lipstick holders that look like big thimbles. They are lined in a row or arranged in a half-circle.

For $1 or $2, any of a group of pins or rings in a modern sterling pattern.

Rare, Beautiful. Perhaps the most unusual jewelry in town this year is the Yemenite collection at Rina Galleries, grouped by price in the $40 or the $15 category.

This hand-wrought gold-washed silver jewelry is incredibly delicate and fine in design and workmanship, combining garnets, turquoise and coral with the metal in opulent, fine-spun magnificence.

A Yemenite necklace, almost like a bib of lace, lies flat against the throat, but is made of minute silver rods, spheres and supple chains. ($37). A bracelet, link style and wide, falls softly and without a sound as the wrist moves. ($40).

Earrings fashioned like square boxes, or cut spheres, harmonize with, or match perfectly, most of these Rina Galleries pieces. Button earrings, for example, are $9.95, in chrysanthemum pattern. Half-inch boxes with dangles that jingle provocatively, are $12.50.

GOOD SCENTS

Cosmetics to Buy. Whatever it is, pour it into one of the imported leaded crystal flacons at Thorne's, made in clear or smoky crystal, sold in sets or singly.

These perfume bottles are faceted, in the modern manner, with clean, geometric lines. Two smoky ones on a tray, bottle and atomizer, make a fine gift. A single one, beveled and diamond cut, would be a welcome thought, at $4.95.

Germaine Montell's Royal Secret luxury bath line, with perfume, powder, talc and foam bath in flexible containers is a "Thorne favorite."

"Oh la la" by Ciro is said to be a "true French fragrance," whatever that may be. The packaging is certainly French, in any case (red ribbons and black lace).

His Highness, Matchabelli ranges six small columns of cologne in a circle, and sets them down in a round, spangled white and gold box with a tulip bow. The Prince's perfume dispenser ($3) has blue, green or rose-spangled net to guard its fragrance.

Four scents by Matchabelli for $2.50 ($5.00 value) join Wind Song, Stradivari, Beloved and Golden Autumn in a single package.

Gold and satin provide the background for Coty's gift boxes at Thorne's, combining sachet, dusting powder, face powder and toilet water and perfume all in one big present.

Rubinstein sends "Heaven Sent" via a pair of angels against a powder blue box. Max Factor sends "Primitif" with that black and wicked cat. $1.50 for a purse-size perfume encased between two black paws.

Factor's Case-Mates are a factor to consider for Christmas. Lipstick and mirror together, you will recall, with a compact, too, if you wish, in a pearl-strewn case or a metal one.

Revlon has a gold and red-tooled leather manicure case with remover, base, polish and every tool you can think of Matchabelli is a favorite here, too, and so are Chanel, Tweed, Dorothy Gray, Guerlain, Leatheric, Houbigant, Lanvin, Tussy and all the old gang.

Plastic cosmetic cases at Forer's might begin with the clear plastic one fashioned with carnation print foundation and containing pink bottles and containers covered with pearls. Another case is an orchid and white opaque plastic print.

A gold brocade striped pouch for cosmetics could almost be used for an evening bag. One for the traveler is the plastic one with washcloth and plastic hangers inside.

Out of the Val, Colonial soaps hold forth at The Country Mouse, where hand-made products by Colonial Spice are ranged along the shelves. For 25c and 30c, you may buy soap balls, and for $2.39 a pointed apothecary jar of lemon-drop size soaps.

Nassau Pharmacy presents Evening in Paris in five gold bottles—gift-cased. Herbarry Gardens rose or lavender petals come in china rose-petal dishes or violet-edged white ones. Coty's Duettes, compact with lipstick, in its hinge, is tortoise shell or white, $2.50.

JUST WRAP IT UP

Useful Miscellany. Robert Hall's black sequined orlon sweater for $5.89 and the big-collared bulky at $2.50-$4 are good to know about.

Stacy has a floppy white mohair jacket for $22.98, and an awesome chiffon-lined white casimere handed with white fox, for $149.98. The same shop has a fine twist of an umbrella in purple nylon for $9.98 and a more sedate deep olive one with braid around the handle.

Bel lows' $65 1 a m b s w o o l white sweater has rose, green and yellow embroidered flowers. Italian Mohair is $29.95, for a pink-purple, brown-orange, royal-kelly combination with drawstring effect at the neckline.

Ruffles and Flourishes

In the words of the old song, "All is safely gathered in." This is the year for gathered ruffles, and you'll find them on everything but washing machines. Honest.

Stacy, for example, has ebony satin gloves with a ruffle around each wrist (Of course "each"—look pretty silly with a ruffle around just one.)

Bellows swirl out an emerald velvet duster with a ruffle which must start and end somewhere; it's actually a continuing stream around neck, down front and around hem.

Bailey's has a shirt that is a model of sobriety, until you open the sleeve and find a roguish ruffle around the cuff.

Edith loves the Christmas red party with its black lace ruffle and the appliqued Christmas decoration.

Money Tree enfold its Christmas customers in Thailand silk stoles ($14.95) combining colors in unusual ways. For 65c in this shop, you can get an Indian brass dialer for the phone desk. Can't you just hear the Indian craftsmen asking what on earth is this mystifying tool we are making for the insane Americans?

Bailey brings out for cold days a hooded white cardigan, and for dressed-up evenings, an embroidered white boat-neck sweater.

Big Danish cardigans at The English Shop, including a noted red one with raglan sleeves and big stamped silver buttons. A 3/4-sleeve cable stitched sweater comes from Holland in blue heather.

Sweaters from Picone at The English Shop are dyed to match exactly the lounging slacks—high colors, all.

Braemar is Clayton's favorite, with a Chanel jacket in vibrant blue, sage, or black at $29.95. Bernhard Altmann's cashmere cardigan is dressy, in white.

Kessler and Bellis, in Hopewell, coordinates Bobby Brooks with everything: sweaters, skirts, blouses. Look what they can do with vivid ski-blue!

Mary Gill goes straight for the wool jersey helmet and the knitted cylindrical cap that looks like a boy's skating hat. A real jersey "hat" ("you could wear it to New York") has earflaps against the subway breezes.

Hay and Clover has an oblong box of plaid cotton with white rope. They say you carry a bottle in it.

That ever-blooming gift, the good handbag, appears at 18th Century, Red Barn, Stacy and Bellows in the form of Aigner and his magic linen-leather combination. Alligator, treated to a more feminine shape than usual, makes a group of regal bags at Bellows.

Huli's wears, with tweeds, Flare-Ups. These are stitched cable hose that go above the knee, in charcoal or black.

Needpoint tote bags at Cummins have two compartments that snap together $13.20 in black. The long-barreled clutch is here in tan, red, navy, a good foot long and a good $5.50 in price.

Tapestry bags at Hopewell's Casual Shop are shopping or evening size. The Clothes Line on the Square has a bag shaped like a birdhouse, made of wood with leather top and handle. An enormous bag, big as a suitcase, is hand-stitched leather with a six-inch brass eagle spreading himself arrogantly over the front. C'est formidable!

ART SUBSIDIES OPPOSED

By Choir College Head. Acting President Noel Sargent of Westminster Choir College has offered strong opposition to proposals for governmental subsidies designed to preserve the performing arts. His statement was sent to Rep. Frank Thompson, Junior Chairman of a House Subcommittee holding hearings on the subject.

In refuting the argument for subsidy to protect culture, Mr. Sargent said that if schools and adult education "cannot create an appreciation of and desire for real culture, we surely cannot hope that governmental subsidization of particular types of expression or groups of performers can do so." It would be better, he said, "to encourage development of the public taste than arbitrarily to direct, control and limit it."

In citing examples from the Communist world, he argued "that governmental subsidization of the arts can mean eventually control of such arts by the design of their utilization to advance some particular philosophy."

"As the representative of an institution which for nearly 40 years has trained people for the more effective use of music in church worship," President Sargent noted, "it should be observed that any extension of government subsidization of artists or modes of artistic expression might introduce an undesirable contravention of the principle of separation of church and state."

HOW TO COOK

For Christmas, Mrs. Evelyn Patterson will demonstrate "Cooking for Christmas" to members of the Gourmet and Town and Country groups of the Newcomer's Club Friday morning at the YWCA. She is the author of "Gourmet Kitchen" and "Meals for Guests."

Presently she is working on a new book entitled, "The Beginning and the End," which concerns first courses and desserts. Mrs. Patterson lives at 128 Fitz-Randolph Road.

PTA PLANS BOOK FAIR

NEW APARTMENTS IN LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP: Colonial architecture, natural stone and red brick are being used for the apartment buildings of "Westgate," new garden apartment project now being built on Lawrence Road near Notre Dame High School. The structures are designed with double-stud sound-insulated walls and acoustic sprung sound-insulated ceilings between apartments. Phillip Collins, Princeton architect, has been serving as architect for "Westgate."

APARTMENTS GOING UP
In Lawrence, "Westgate," a garden apartment project of 72 apartments, is now under construction in Lawrence Township, opposite Notre Dame High School on Lawrence Road.

Within its nine units, "Westgate" will contain 72 one-and-two bedroom apartments, some with low windows, some with balconies and all with courtyards.

The builders plan to offer free swimming pool privileges for tenants, free air-conditioning, and free gas, heat and hot water.

It is expected that the apartments will be ready for January 15 occupancy. The renting and managing agents are R. C. Reinhold, Co., 383 West State Street, Trenton.

WHAT NEXT?

In Green Acres Program. The Green Acres Citizens Committee has been asked to continue as an advisory committee to deal with land acquisitions as they are proposed under the recently passed Green Acres program.

Princeton area residents who are members of the committee are Paul Van Wegen and Malcolm P. Crooks of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association, Pennington, and James Kerney, Jr. of Princeton.

According to Mr. Van Wegen, the program will probably fall into two phases: (1) the acquisition of large areas by the state as "wilderness" sites and (2) the acquisition by counties and municipalities of smaller sites for rambles and recreation areas, using the 50-50 matching funds provided by the state.

Princeton Township's Open Space Committee, for example, might arrange to buy land under this plan, Mr. Van Wegen points out.

Sourland Considered. At the moment, the Watersheds Association has no specific projects which have the approval of the association's trustees; however, both Mr. Crooks and Mr. Van Wegen would like to see the state set aside the Sourland Mountains as a wilderness area similar to Stokes State Forest of the Wharton Tract.

"We hope that state officials will take a long, deliberate look at the situation and not act in haste," Mr. Van Wegen says. "And we hope that the program will not be dominated by people with a single segment of interest, such as highway locations or reservoirs, essential though these things may be."

The Department of Conservation and Economic Development has a Land Use Committee composed of representatives of its different divisions. This Committee will establish procedures and draw up application forms to be used by municipalities that want to participate in the program. These procedures will be made public shortly, according to the Department.

SUGGESTIONS OFFERED

On Christmas Mailings. Princeton Postmaster Charles F. Murray observes that people can avoid a last minute rush in their Christmas mailings by following suggestions which would also constitute a welcome Christmas present to postal employees.

Do your Christmas shopping now and mail your gift parcels promptly. Don't worry about being too early—just label your packages "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

Buy your Christmas cards soon and revise your mailing lists. Separate the cards into local and out-of-town bundles and hold them for an early mailing. By buying stamps now, when the windows are unobscured, you can avoid waiting in long lines during the rush.

For Christmas cards, the Post Office Department recommends using 4-cent stamps to insure first class mail treatment. This means that cards may contain personal messages, may be sealed and may be forwarded or returned. Free "Local" and "Out-of-Town" bands will be available in the post office about December 1.

MORE FRIENDS SOUGHT

For Public Library. The council of the Friends of the Public Library is conducting a drive to enroll new members. The group is currently studying problems in connection with the construction of a joint public library for Borough and Township.

The goal of the drive is to enlist as many interested persons as possible as "Friends" so that their knowledge of the facts and their yearly financial support may spread and awareness of the problems that face the Library and also lead to solutions. Membership applications are available at the Library, 153 Nassau Street, and through community service groups.

TO HOLD AUCTION

For College Scholarships. The 13th annual Smith Club Auction will be held on January 27 in the Miss Fine's School gymnasium. Mrs. C. Welles Fendrich, Jr., auction chairman, announced that Lester Slatoff will again be the auctioneer. Proceeds are used for scholarships to the College. Other committee chairmen include Mrs. Frederick E. Seiler, auctioneer's helpers; Mrs. Bernard Goldstein, baked goods; Mrs. Clifford L. Lamar, Jr., display; Mrs. A. Rommel Ambrose, luncheon; Mrs. Klaus Florey, hostesses; and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding III, post-ers.

Also, Mrs. George Berry, small gifts; Mrs. Lawrence Ilavack, solicitor; Mrs. John T. Bales, assistant auction chairman and head of the telephone committee; and Mrs. Frederick L. Ferris, Jr., publicity.

SENIORS RENT CRUISER

For Senior Class Trip. The senior class of Princeton High School, which will visit Washington April 30, May 1 and 2, will rent a 126-foot cabin cruiser to make the traditional trip down the Potomac. This is the first year the students will have a cruiser for their exclusive use.

To get to the nation's capital, three cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad train have been reserved. Highlights of the trip will include tours of Annapolis, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other government buildings.

BUILDING DONATED

To Watershed Association. The Marshall's Corner schoolhouse, which the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association has been leasing as an office for five years, has been given to the Watersheds group by the Marshall's Corner Community Association. The deed and a check for $400 for building maintenance were presented to the Watersheds Association by John Fausett of Hopewell, senior officer of the Community Association.

David H. McAlphin of Princeton, chairman of the Watershed Association, expressed his group's appreciation of the gift and said, "The building is perfectly suited for

Buy an annuity and live

Financial insecurity can lead to a barren and lonely existence for the older person. Those years after 60 can also bring the fear of out-living capital and the worry of managing the savings of a lifetime. The result—often severe stresses that can be dangerous to both physical and mental health.

People who buy annuities buy freedom from worry and fear. Our annuitants find that a regular income guaranteed for life brings peace of mind, helps make those sunset years a rich and satisfying experience. And we know that many live to a ripe old age.

Whether you are 30 and buying an annuity in advance or you are 70 and want payments to start now there's an annuity designed to bring you peace of mind. The Man from Manufacturers would be pleased to give you the complete story. Be sure to ask him about the favourable tax picture.

Report from THE MAYOR

"Tell it to the Mayor!" The regular weekly open house sessions are scheduled for Friday, December 1, and Friday, December 8, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

At last week's "Tell it to the Mayor" session, the major topic of discussion and concern—expressed by Township as well as Borough residents—was water. Municipal officials noted with interest the statement of the Princeton Water Company that it was studying means of improvement "to eliminate future misunderstanding."

Much more than this. It wants much more than this. It wants and should have the firm assurance that the water supply is at all times adequate and safe and that there is prompt and accurate and thorough public reporting whenever there is an exception to such standards.

The two governing bodies must not rest nor dismiss the recent problem as an unusual "episode" until some more satisfactory arrangement is effected.

Along the Millstone. The Mayor has been invited by William A. Sommers, Manager of Franklin Township in Somerset County, to attend a meeting of their neighboring municipalities to discuss the eventual feasibility of a trunk sewer in the Millstone River area. "With the projected growth of this general area," he says, "we feel that the time will soon come when such a sewer trunk will be a necessity for communities along the Millstone." The invitation will be turned over to Council President Alfred Sorenson who is also our Council representative on our Sewer Operating Committee.

From Guatemala. The Princeton community continues to open its doors and its hearts warmly to increasing numbers of foreign visitors. Last week, from Wednesday through Sunday afternoon, the town was host to ten young (16 to 20 years of age) men from the Latin American Republic of Guatemala.

With their two interpreters, the group toured the University on Wednesday afternoon; enjoyed typical Thanksgiving Day dinners in a number of Princeton homes; visited E.T.S. and enjoyed luncheon as their guests on Friday, followed by a visit to R.C.A. and other Princeton homes. On Saturday they toured Walker-Gordon and Forsgate Farms, watched the Princeton-Dartmouth football game, and enjoyed an informal evening and dance with a group of Spanish-speaking teenagers.

They attended church on Sunday morning; and it was the Mayor's pleasure to have the entire group as guests for dinner at our home before they left for New York City. This group's program for a month's visit to the United States was arranged by the National Social Welfare Assembly and the Office of Cultural Exchange of the U.S. Department of State. These fine young men will begin their studies at their University of San Carlos in January. I shall always remember the stirring moments when they rose from the dinner table at our home and sang their national anthem so movingly. They sang several verses; and I wondered how many U.S. citizens could sing more than the first verse of our own anthem.

On the Calendar. Also during the past week, the Mayor met with other Borough officials in further discussion with a property owner in the Nassau East parking project area (without agreement thus far); met with the Superintendent of Schools and the President of the Borough Board of Education at their invitation to discuss some major planning affecting the future of the schools and the community; received a request from the State PTAs for further information about the Princeton Youth Employment Service (YES) so that they might answer a growing number of inquiries from other towns. This week's schedule includes an important meeting of the Borough Safety Committee which follows the recent special sub-committee meeting on bicycle and pedestrian safety with representatives of all the public and private schools.

our headquarters and will contribute significantly to the continuance of our organization, which is devoted to the conservation of natural resources in the Stony Brook and Millstone Watersheds."

The schoolhouse, which is made of stone, was built in 1825. It is set on a three-quarter acre lot, which was included in the gift. The property is located midway between Pennington and Hopewell.

BIRD GUIDE AVAILABLE

From Conservation Department. "A Field Guide to the Birds," a pamphlet prepared by the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development and the New Jersey Audubon Society is available from the conservation department in Trenton for 25 cents. The handy, pocket-sized booklet is also available in larger lots at a cheaper price.

The publication lists the names of all birds found in New Jersey, which lies under the Atlantic Flyway, one of the great migratory routes. Information about the areas in which the birds are usually found and space for watchers' own notes is also provided.

Philip Minor, sometime Princetonian known to the-atregoers here as actor and director, has been invited to lecture on "Shaw's Man-Woman Relationships" before the Shaw Society of New York.

Mr. Minor, who directed the current off-Broadway Shaw hit, "Misalliance," will present two scenes from that production, and will recreate, with Nell Duncan, Shaw's "Village Wooing," which he and Mrs. Duncan presented for Princeton audiences last summer.

The Shaw Society has about 500 members. Admission to the Minor lecture, to be given next Monday, is by invitation only.

she is truly moving. Rating: a disturbing and brilliant questioning of truth and justice.

Secrets of Women (December 3-9) is another of the old new pictures of Ingmar Bergman. Although produced in 1952, the film has just now made its way to the United States. Many of the themes that Bergman was to explore later in "The Seventh Seal" and "The Virgin Spring" are here in embryonic form.

The film concerns five women who sit around a country home, waiting for their husbands to arrive. They pass the time by telling stories about their marital affairs. Of the three episodes (one woman doesn't know anything, and the other is merely an observer), the first is played for laughs, while the second is serious, and the third and best, a penetrating insight into life.

All the Bergman actors are here, and do fine jobs under their talented director. The picture ends with a nice twist, and is pleasant and entertaining. Rating: comments on human relationships are clever and universally applicable, without the darkness of Bergman's later problems. Rating: early (and unusual) Bergman.

sons of retirement age to visit his office, 437 East State Street, Trenton, to discuss retirement benefits under the social security program.

Mr. Lansdown said many people who are 65 or older are not aware that they do not have to stop work completely in order to receive social security payments. A pamphlet, "21 Questions and Answers about Social Security Payments," may be obtained free of charge by writing the Trenton office, Mr. Lansdown said.

"Under the social security law, if you are eligible for retirement benefits, you can earn up to $1,200 a year and get a benefit check for all 12 months in the year," Mr. Lansdown stated.

"If you make more than $1,200, you will still receive a check for any month in which you do not earn more than $100 or do not render substantial services in self-employment."

CHIEF HATCHET-MAN: Quarterback Bill King (14) raised consistent hob Saturday with Princeton's defenses, engineering a picturesque attack that toppled the Tigers, 24 to 6. Here he breaks through the center of the line for an 11-yard gain that led to the Indian's third period touchdown, which he scored himself. A junior, King finished the season as Ivy league's leader in total offense. (Howard Schrader Photo.)

TIGERS RAN OUT OF GAS

But "Wait 'Til Next Year!"

A Princeton football team which was never expected to have a shot at the Ivy title finally came apart at the seams Saturday, losing a one-sided contest to Dartmouth, 24 to 6. While the Tigers were woefully short of manpower through a series of injuries that grew even as the game progressed, nothing should be subtracted from the fact that the Green played better football that afternoon than any Ivy opponent the Tigers faced this season.

High atop the west side of the Stadium in the press box, after the Western Union ticker had brought word that Harvard had tied Columbia for a share of the Ivy title, and the standings showed Princeton in a third-place tie with Dartmouth, a group of Princeton alumni in the sports writing fraternity had a thought in common. Paying tribute to the battle cry that was born at Ebbets' Field, one of them remarked contentedly, "Wait 'til next year!"

The others echoed his forecast, enjoying the fact that so many of the key players removed by injury this season had not completed their careers but would be back for another shot at the Ivy championship that barely eluded them in 1961. Well before the end of Saturday's game, this was the unprecedented injury list:

Ends: Barry Schuman and Hank Large, both regulars; Dan Phillips, Olin West and Bill Howard, three highly-capable reserves.

Tackle: Ed Costello, a little-publicized sophomore who broke into the starting lineup for the Rutgers game as the only member of his class to do so and was a major line asset all season.

Center: Bruce Hartman, the team's top linchman when a knee injury removed him for the season early in October.

Backs: Tailbacks Greg Riley and Hugh MacMillan, wingback Dan Terpack plus Roger Hoil, who was kept from a normal amount of action throughout the year by a pinched shoulder nerve. This backfield attrition matches Cornell's, which could not rise higher than fifth place.

Same Old Story in '62

Princeton next year will play the same nine teams it has each season since 1951. Six games are scheduled for Palmer Stadium; the road trips will be to Philadelphia, Ithaca and New Haven.

The picture will be the same in '63—the seven other Ivies, Rutgers and Colgate. The following year, however, certain variations will take place with the Dartmouth game (site still undetermined) in mid-October and Cornell ending the season here in November.

The 1962 schedule: Sept. 29, Rutgers; Oct. 6, Columbia; 13, Penn. away; 20, Colgate; 27, Cornell away; Nov. 3, Brown; 10, Harvard; 17, Yale, away; 24 Dartmouth.

from its injury-created problems.

Minor Graduation Losses

You have to go all the way back to the fall of 1934 to find a situation paralleling this year's in losses which will occur from graduation. When the Class of '35 picked up its diplomas, center Mose Kalbaugh and quarterback Katz Kadlie were the only two key players ending their gridiron careers.

Of the 11 players who started against Dartmouth Saturday, four are seniors. Only three (Captain Ed Weihenmayer, guard, tackle Andy Conner, end Hank Large) were season-long regulars. The other starting end, Jim Hunter, was the injured Barry Schuman's replacement. Schuman, like Riley, Terpack, Phillips and Hartman, is a junior; Costello, Howard and MacMillan are sophomores.

So, Princeton will start its 1962 season with an all-senior backfield (Terpack, John Henrich, Bill Merlini, Riley) and four of seven regulars in the line. The right side (Weihenmayer, Conner, Large) will be swept clean by graduation, and the veteran ability they take with them is not easily replaced. The potential, however, is above average.

Boistering the game-tested juniors and seniors will be a fine group of sophomores—bigger than usual, more promising than normal, and just as green as all varsity newcomers are. Their record this fall was 5-1; with Dartmouth and Yale freshmen, they rank as the pick of the Ivy League.

While it is unlikely that they will crack the 1962 starting lineup in view of the number of regulars and replacements returning to the varsity next fall, three of them are possibilities. The trio of top prospects are Ernie Pascarella, a 220-lb. tackle; Ron Bonomo, a 190-lb. guard; and Cosmo Iacavazzi, a 193-lb. fullback. The two linemen will be hoping the fill gaps created by the graduation of Weihenmayer and Conner. Iacavazzi impressed with his running and blocking, but will have a battle on his hands replacing Bill Merlini, who improved so steadily at fullback during the latter half of the 1961 season.

Estimating the Ivies. It has been a season-long punching-bag for the sportswriting fraternity that the advance estimates of the Ivy League's strength went so far astray. As far back as last spring, directors of sports publicity and the coaches of the Ancient Eight were in this general agreement:

Yale and Cornell the best bets to finish first, with Penn and Columbia the other logical choices for first division. Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth were all given a chance of finishing as high as fifth: Brown was generally conceded to be the likely cellar-dweller.

What happened? Yale, it developed, had lost far more than believed by graduation; the replacements in the form of 1960 bench strength and upcoming sophomores simply weren't there. Cornell was wrecked by early injuries, but it seemed illogical even last spring to expect a new coach (Tom Harp) to make a contender out of the Ithacans in his first season. He didn't.

Of the top four selections, only Columbia held up: Penn never had it from the start in contrast. Dick Colman, Harvard's John Yovicin and Dartmouth's Bob Blackman accomplished fine rebuilding jobs, succeeding where Yale, Cornell and Penn did not. Brown was accordingly the only team that ran completely true to form.

A Look at 1962. Wholly aware of the pitfalls that await even immediate pre-season forecasting, this early estimate of the 1962 standings is advanced:

Beginning at the bottom—Brown, which has virtually every problem confronting it, ranging from sub-par varsity material to a weak freshman squad and reported dissension among players and coaches.

Seventh—Pennsylvania, plagued by a continuance of ordinary material, sub-par freshman and low morale.

Others in second division—Columbia and Yale. After one year of glory in the last 15, Columbia loses virtually everything by graduation. A lack of bench strength was partially responsible for the Lion's 25-point yield in the fourth quarter to Rutgers, and run-of-the-mill Columbia squads which are short of manpower never top the .500 mark. Yale (4-5 this season) did not play a good game all year and seems unlikely to improve markedly next fall.

First division: Cornell, Harvard, Dartmouth, Princeton. Injury-free at Ithaca, Tom Harp should blend good hold-over material with adequate sophomore strength into a title contender. At Cambridge, Yovicin loses virtually his entire line and several key backs to graduation, but appears a better bet than any of the foregoing second-division choices to rebuild well.

That leaves Dartmouth and Princeton, which are the pick

WE Congratulate

ED WEIHENMAYER
Football Captain

"The walking wounded." Charlie Caldwell used to call them. He coined the phrase to describe the players who were obviously injured, but were able to navigate on their own and nightly hopeful of playing in next Saturday's game.

In addition to being captain of this year's football team, Ed Weihenmayer was the leader of the walking wounded. Banged up in the rugged Rutgers game, he was in at the kickoff against Columbia only to be carried off on a stretcher early in the second half.

He played in the mud against Penn and Colgate, made a major contribution to the important 30-25 victory over Cornell which assured the Tigers of a first-place Ivy finish. But he never really left the ranks of the walking wounded—some form of bang or bruise or muscle pull always kept him from being in top shape.

"Weihenmayer avoided the doctor all last week," a close follower of the team reported on the eve of the Yale game. "He figures what both of them don't know won't hurt him."

In many ways, the Princeton captain's eagerness to play, his ability to override minor injuries with an overriding spirit, personified the entire team's attitude this season. Many more than usual were hurt, but until they ran out of just about everything against Dartmouth, no one clearly outplayed them.

Long before practice began at Blairstown, Weihenmayer was busy discussing the season with squad members, keeping in touch by letter during the summer. "Everyone says we won't be good enough to have a good year," the largely inexperienced Tigers said. "Let's show 'em how wrong they are." It was the kind of determination that paid off handsomely, as four of their five Ivy victims (Columbia, Penn, Cornell, Yale) were all favored to top them in the pre-season rankings.

A guard for three seasons, Weihenmayer never started a game before this fall. But his progress was steady, he was awarded the captaincy a year ago, and Dick Colman hands him his niche in Princeton athletic history with the comment, "He would absorb all kinds of physical punishment in order to carry out his assignment. He was a player who never once let up throughout the season."

here to determine the Ivy title in Palmer Stadium on November 24. The topflight coaching of Bob Blackman, the return of several key players—notably quarterback Bill King—and two good football classes (1964 and '65) back to back all combine to peg the Indians as major title contenders.

If the law of averages works to cut Princeton's injury list sharply, the Tigers, too, should have a bright year. They seem certain to improve on the well-balanced offense shown this season, and are equally logical bets to be stronger defensively. For the coaching staff, it should be a pleasant winter as they wade through the mountainous task of preliminary paper work that sets a new season in motion.

Indians Took Charge. Always in front from the time a well-faked field goal turned into a screen pass and 13-yard touchdown play, Dartmouth dominated Saturday's game in clear-out fashion. The Green's first-period score came at 10:35. Princeton edged up to 7-6 early in the second quarter when Pete Porietis ran around end from five yards out.

However, the necessary bid for a two-point conversion was turned back, and the visitors marched again to make it 14-6 at halftime. While their traditionally sound defense kept a substitute riddled Princeton lineup in check, they added ten points in the final half to earn a third-place deadlock in the Ivy standings.

Loss of Hank Large, a fine end all season, early in the first quarter, and injuries to Ed Costello and Dan Phillips as the contest progressed created more manpower problems than the Tigers could solve. The semblance of their often devastating attack was there, as 262 yards on offense indicates, but the "home-run punch" that has produced so many long gainers during the season was missing.

It proved to be a 5-4 season—victories over Columbia, Penn, Cornell, Brown, Yale; losses to Rutgers, Colgate, Harvard, Dartmouth—but generally much more satisfactory than pre-season estimates of the team's ability indicated was likely. No coach, no player associated with Princeton football in 1961 need have a single regret over the degree of accomplishment achieved.

NEW SEASON TO START

Winter Sports This Weekend. Two Princeton winter sports teams, ending a month of steady practice, will play their first games of the new season Saturday. Both are away from home.

Back at the helm after his heart attack last January benched him for the rest of the season, Cappy Cappon will take his highly-promising basketball team to Easton, Pa., Saturday night. The veteran Tiger quintet will face Lafayette, always tough to beat on its own court. Highly-regarded Villanova will provide the opposition in the home opener next Wednesday at 8 in Dillon Gymnasium.

Princeton's hockey team will travel to Green Mountain territory for its first contest, facing Middlebury in Vermont Saturday. The Tigers will be on view first in Baker Rink.

The following weekend, entertaining Army, and have games here with Colgate, Northeastern and Boston University all before Christmas.

These two Orange and Black outfits appear headed in diametrically opposite directions. For the title-defending basketball team, the picture is bright; the skaters are undermanned, particularly on defense, and do not figure to top the break-even point either in the Ivy League or on the season.

Truly a "Quintet." The basketball rule book stipulates that a team shall be composed of five players, and that's about what Cappon has. Two promising sophomores have been removed—Bill Howard by the knee injury he incurred in football and Rick Wright by academic ineligibility, at least until February.

The picture is bright because four members of last year's Ivy champions are back, with a good varsity holdover in 6-3 Bill Haarlow to round out the starting lineup. A rash of personal fouls on any given evening or an injury to one of his key players could complicate Cappon's plans severely, but he is known for his "iron man" policy and the Tigers rank as the team to beat among the Ivies.

Captain Al Kaemmerlen is the big man of the squad at 6-5. Good under the basket, he was the team's second high scorer last year, averaging a fine 15.7 points per game.

The sharpshooter, of course, is 6-1 Pete Campbell, the bespectacled senior with the soft shot from the corner who also has the ability to drive in for layups that often develop into three-point plays. Before the upcoming campaign is done, Campbell figures to break all the scoring records set half a dozen years ago by Bud Haabestad.

Hyland Is Valuable. One of the small-sized experts at the sport who regularly are a part of basketball under Cappon will again be a major asset to Princeton this season. Art Hyland, a shade under six feet, hit on 44 percent of his floor shots last year, averaged better than 12 points a game and frequently pored the offensive efforts of high-scoring opponents of his approximate size.

The fourth member of the 1961 Ivy champions on hand for another season is Jack Whitehouse, win with Campbell, is a fine outside threat. Teams using the zone against the Princetonians will be in for trouble with these two popping away from the corners.

Three seniors, Jim Day, Jim Hunter, Geoff Myers and two sophomores, Dick Chandler and Dick Botnick, form the reserve quintet. scrimmages this month against St. Peters, Rider and Upsala, the first team has run away from the opposition, but the reserves have had major problems against all but Upsala.

Pennsylvania, which finished at a tremendous clip last year, including an 88-63 drubbing of the Tigers after the title had been decided, is the only serious threat to a third straight Ivy crown for the Orange and Black. The schedule is rough on Princeton in its two games with the Quakers—Cappon's quintet invades the Palestra on January 6 for its league opener, and then entertains Penn here on the 27th in its first game following the two-week exam break.

SKATERS TOP ALUMNI

In High-Scoring Game. The annual contest between the varsity and alumni hockey teams went to the undergraduates in Baker Rink Friday night, 10 to 5. Harry Rulon-Miller '58, who earned all-Ivy rating when he played here, scored three times for the losers, while sophomore Gary Skouing duplicated the feat for the varsity.

In addition to Rulon-Miller, now a faculty member at his alma mater, Princeton Country Day, others from this area playing for the alumni included Pete Cook, Lance Odden and Dave Erdman. Cook contributed a goal and an assist.

Brother John Cook, who set the pace in Ivy scoring last winter as a sophomore, got the varsity's first goal at 1:17, added another before the evening was over and was credited with two assists. The line on which he, Jim Hyland and Skoning skate is being counted on for an attack that will offset defensive problems as much as possible.

Captain Austin Sullivan and Britt Mockridge will give the team a good first-line defensive pair, particularly if Mockridge cuts his tendency to spend part of each game in the penalty box. Bill Hill should be a capable replacement for Barry Van Gerbig in the goal.

In addition to Johnny Cook and Sullivan, Princeton area residents on the squad this winter are Hugh Wise, Pony Fraker and Webb Harrison. Reserve goalies Duke Sloan and Joe Wright have also lived here in the past.

"The big thing in the show ring," says Mrs. Spencer, "is to have your horse go under you with beauty and motion. It's just a thrill; it makes your hair stand on end. I love it. We eat, sleep and breathe it, and we do it morning, noon and night. They say the outside of a horse is good for the inside of man and I believe it. I can't do without it, it's a tremendous stimulant!"

Here Two Years. The Spencers moved to New Jersey two years ago from Clark's Summit, Pa. "When we saw this place, we knew we had found it," said Mrs. Spencer. In those two years, they have built a quarter-mile track (considered a good size), a 150 x 250 foot training ring, and cleared much of their 30 acres for pasture. Currently, they are enlarging their barn to accommodate ten more horses.

Although small in area, New Jersey ranks third in the nation for general interest in horses, according to Mrs. Spencer. "We could go to a horse show every weekend, all within an hour's drive from here, but we just can't get to them all," she said.

From June to September, the height of the show season, the Spencers entered 11 shows. (The season actually begins in May and ends with a huge show in New York's Madison Square Garden in November.)

They have their own horse vans and trucks and do their own shipping to the various shows.

The horse that is presently winning numerous ribbons for the Spencers is a big, bold-moving, liver chestnut gelding named Flare-Up. The five-gaited, eight-year-old beauty made his debut at New Brunswick this year and since "has beaten every horse up here," reported Mrs. Spencer. Among his triumphs this year were the Reserve Championship at Moorestown, the Eastern Breeders Show at Hanover, a "terrific win" at Quentín, Pa., and a second place ribbon in The Eastern Breeders at Branchville, an important show.

A tremendous amount of work goes into the care and grooming of a show horse like Flare-Up. After Mrs. Spencer gives him a daily workout of several miles around the quarter-mile track, he is taken to the barn where he is walked till he is cool. The attendants then take sponges and bathe the horse in water, followed by a grooming period that lasts up to 45 minutes.

This ritual takes place every day in hot weather, about two hours elapse before a horse is back in his stall after a workout. "A horse like Flare-Up has to be kept in the peak of condition," she said.

dution at all times," said Mrs. Spencer.

Another outstanding member of the Spencer stable is Bourbon Hware, a four-year-old light-chestnut, extremely beautiful stallion raised and trained by the Spencers. Well bred but still a few years from his peak years as a show horse, he will be used mainly this year as a breeding horse to a limited number of mares.

Will Train Children. Until the Spencers arrived, the Princeton area had no one qualified to teach saddle-seat equitation, a big word for horsemanship. "At least we know of no one that offered this type of training for children," said Mrs. Spencer.

After two years of mulling it over, the Spencers now hope to eliminate this equitation void. They are expanding their facilities to take on a limited number of outside horses for boarding and would be willing to train a few children who are interested in going into the show ring. "We wouldn't want anyone younger than nine or 10, the ideal age to start," Mrs. Spencer said, pointing out that at that age they learn quickly and have no fear.

"This is not pleasure riding," warns Mrs. Spencer. "This means a lot of training and hard work every day. But it's wonderful fun. It offers the constant challenge of trying to do something better. It takes a long, long time to become a winner."

"It teaches a child to lose with a smile. You have to work to win. You don't get a blue ribbon just because you want one. They are hard to come by and when you finally get one, they taste awfully good."

"Our philosophy here is that we do the best job we can with each horse, and we try to teach our children to do the very best they can. And to smile whether they win, lose or draw. That's about all we can do."

FIRST SHOW SUNDAY
Of New Riding Club. The public is invited to attend the first monthly junior horsemanship and schooling horse show of the newly built Chestnut Ridge Riding Club which will be held Sunday at its indoor riding hall on The Great Road. There is no admission charge.

Included in the 21 classes to be held during the day are the New Jersey Professional Horsemen's Association Trophies for Working Hunters, Children's Working Hunters and both Large and Small Pony Working Hunters. Ribbons won in these classes count toward the

Annual Hockey Tournament Scheduled

The 14th annual Lawrenceville Hockey Tournament will be held Friday and Saturday, December 15 and 16, in Baker Rink. Eight top eastern schools — five from New England — will participate.

Deerfield Academy, the defending champion, will be here in an attempt to become the first school to repeat since St. Paul's turned the trick in 1955 and '56. Chief threat to its hopes is expected to be Andover, which compiled a 14-1-1 mark last winter. Charlie Stuart of Princeton is captain of the Blue

Lawrenceville, the host team, will face Andover in the first game of the two-day affair. Weather permitting, it will be played on the Red and Black's own Lavino Rink.

Other entries will be the Hill School, Choate, Taft, Nichols and Burrillville, the last-named from Rhode Island. The 1961 tournament will mark Burrillville's first appearance in this traditional holiday event.

The preliminary rounds will be held Friday morning, both in Baker Rink and at Lavino. Semi-finals will take place late that afternoon, with the consolation finals Saturday morning. The championship game — played for the Piel Memorial Trophy — is scheduled for 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

annual championship trophies to be awarded at the end of the year.

Other events are the 4-11 Club Classes and a class for the Henry Bergh Trophy. In the 4-11 events, there will be a class held for riders through 13 years of age and one for riders 14 through 18. The Bergh trophy is awarded each year to the junior rider whose horse has accumulated the most points for children's jumpers at horse shows in New Jersey.

The morning session, devoted to children's classes, will start at 9. The afternoon classes will start at 1:30 and will include Working Hunter, Children's Working Hunter and Junior classes. John Burns, the Club manager, reported that Alexander Atkinson of Doylestown, Pa. will judge the show.

CLAGETT WINS

Regatta in Maryland. Bob Clagett, representing the Carnegie Sailing Club, won the Cambridge (Md.) Penguin frostbite regatta Sunday on the Choptank River.

Winning all three races on the triangular course, Clagett, a resident of Yardley, Pa., compiled 241 points. The runner-up was credited with 176 points. Boats from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia were entered.

CLINIC PLANNED

For Junior High Players. The YMCA will sponsor a basketball clinic for junior high school age boys Saturday morning from 10 to 11:30 in the Princeton High School gymnasium. Pete Campbell, Princeton University's high-scoring guard, will be one of the instructors.

The program will consist of demonstrations and drills. Teams will also be chosen for the YMCA's junior high basketball league.

LARRY IVAN TO DIRECT
YMCA Basketball League. All high school boys interested in playing basketball are requested to bring their equipment to the initial meeting of the Senior High YMCA basketball league to be held at the Princeton High School Gym Friday evening at 7:30. Larry Ivan, teacher and coach in the Borough school system for the past four years, will direct the league.

Four teams will be formed in addition to an All Star team which will play other YMCA teams throughout the state. The All Star team will be composed of the outstanding players on league teams. Rules and regulations will be covered at the first meeting.

Ivan, who directed the summer basketball league at the Harrison Street playground, played basketball at the University of Oklahoma. He now plays with the Trenton Colonials.

LONGER TERM PROPOSED

For Trinity Vestrymen. A proposal to extend the term of office of the vestrymen of Trinity Church from three to four years will be voted upon at the annual parish meeting, to be held Monday at 8:15 p.m. in Pierce Hall, 33 Mercer Street. The proposal, which would not take effect until a year from now, also provides for increasing the size of the vestry from 9 to 12 members.

A second proposal to be voted upon at the meeting would create a Parish Council of 20 to 25 persons, including all the clergy of the parish, the wardens, representatives of major parish organizations and representatives-at-large from the congregation.

Three vestrymen will be elected at the meeting. A slate of six candidates, prepared by the nominating committee, includes George R. Bishop, Philip J. Cobb, Warren P. Elmer, Jr., Francis B. B. Godolphin, John A. Valentine and Harrison H. Young, Jr. Other nominations may be made from the floor at the meeting.

Parish representatives to the Diocesan Convention and to the Trenton-Burlington Convocation will also be elected at the annual meeting. Annual reports of the various parish organizations will be received.

Xmas Cards Approved

A vote in favor of Christmas cards is cast by Dr. Seward Hiltner, professor at Princeton Theological Seminary. In an article in the December issue of "Together," a Methodist family magazine.

While stating that the celebration of Christmas "must be done in, with and through the church," and cannot be celebrated with a card, Dr. Hiltner says that cards "can convey the real spirit of Christmas" and that "the connection between the birth of our Lord and the good will manifest in friendship is not accidental."

"Love of our fellow men is one of the purest expressions of true Christian feeling," Dr. Hiltner writes. "We believe the personal revelation of friendship in a card is more important than an explicitly religious message on it."

WATER: UP TO DATE

Board Will Discuss. When the Township Board of Health meets this Thursday night for its regular meeting, the problem of Princeton's water will be the chief item on its agenda.

Dr. William Kleinberg, chairman of the Board, and Mrs. Marcella Farley, acting Health Officer, will go over with the Board the hour-by-hour water crisis chronology which they will present to Township Committee Monday night.

This is the state of the water situation at the moment: John Wilford, of the State Health Department, says the State is "stymied."

"We know the contaminant of the water was a hydrocarbon of petroleum," Mr. Wilford says, "but we do not know how it got into the well or where it came from."

That No. 3 Well. Once it was determined that the Number 3 well at the Harrison Street field was the source of the trouble, and once that well had been shut down, Mr. Wilford said, the legal responsibilities of the state ended.

"So long as the Princeton Water Company doesn't use the well, they are complying with State requirements," Mr. Wilford said.

In an effort to find the source of the trouble, Mr. Wilford's staff has tested gas and gasoline pipelines in the area, natural gas lines owned by Public Service and the lines at the gas station on the corner of Harrison Street and Route One. All these tests have been negative, Mr. Wilford says.

Dr. Kleinberg, working independently of Mr. Wilford, had also reached the conclusion that the intruder was gasoline by using a gas chromatograph.

This instrument identifies material in water according to distribution by boiling points. At 80-90 degrees Centigrade—the boiling point of gasoline—there was 100 times as much evidence of the contaminant as there was at any other point on the scale, Dr. Kleinberg says.

Criticism of the Water Company for its handling of the problem continued, with Dr. Kleinberg expressing the opinion that the company had been uncooperative, and that he had had no assurance from the company that it would ever call in state health experts if problems rose in the future.

Health officials are also annoyed at the water company for issuing last week's statement by itself, instead of joining with Township and Borough mayors and health boards in a joint statement following the meeting they held together on November 16.

Dr. Kleinberg has pointed out that the delay in making tests might have been avoided by turning to the "dozens of qualified chemists" who live in Princeton and asking them to do so.

SCHOOLS TO BE VISITED

By Bennington Officer. Mrs. George Holt, assistant director of admissions at Bennington College, will visit Miss Fine's School and Princeton High School this Friday. She will meet with principals, guidance counselors and prospective students.

A tea for Bennington alumnae in the Princeton area will be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Gutman, 180 Jefferson Road. Mrs. Holt will be guest of honor.

CHILD ON BIKE HIT

On Snowden Lane. David Westoff, 11, 221 Herrington Road, suffered a cerebral concussion and bruises Saturday when he was struck by a car as he was riding his bicycle along Snowden Lane.

The car was driven by James Shriver, III, 635 Snowden Lane. Mr. Shriver and David were both going north on Snowden when the accident occurred. Township police said David had walked his bike up the hill north of Van Dyke, and had ridden about 20 feet after climbing back on, when he was struck.

David's bike was badly damaged and its rear wheel and assembly completely demolished. He was released from Princeton Hospital after a brief stay and Mr. Shriver was given a summons for careless driving.

LUNCHEON PLANNED

By Aid Committee. A Christmas luncheon party will be held next Thursday, December 7, by the Hospital Aid Committee. A short business meeting will take place following the luncheon, which will begin at noon.

The group will meet at the Springdale Golf Club.

PRINCETON PALAZZO! Not really a palazzo, but with definite Italian influences, palatial in a compact sort of way, and smack in the middle of Princeton Borough, this one is genuinely unique and fascinating. Entry hall, living room, dining room, library and master suite (dressing rooms, rooftop sunning terrace, etc.) are all huge and formal. There's nothing mean about the remaining 4 bedrooms, 4 1/2 baths and a maid's suite. The kitchen is, in a word, superb. Exposed beams, flagstone and handsomely tiled floors, fireplaces galore, intriguing ups and downs (via steps), all add to the fascination, as does one acre enclosed by a stone wall. $135,000
